WALKOUTS HALT ALL C. & A. TRAINS BETWEEN HERE AND KANSAS CITY

Strike of Engineers, Firemen, Conductors and Switchmen on Western Division Affects All Points Between Roodhouse, Ill., and Kansas City.

ACTION IN PROTEST AGAINST GUARDS

Service on Main Lines to Chicago and on Southern Division Not Interrupted, General Passenger Agent Here Says.

Engineers, firemen, conductors and switchmen of passenger and freight trains of the Chicago & Alton Railroad, on the Western division, which includes all points west of Roodhouse, Ill., including St. Louis, and which Kansas City is the terminus, went on strike Saturday night in protest against the activities of armed guards at Roodhouse and St. Louis, stopping every C. & A. train on this division.

St. Louis is affected by the stopping of the four daily passenger trains and all freight trains that operate between this city and Kansas City, and all service between St. Louis and Roodhouse and Jacksonville, Ill.

The Missouri Pacific announced today that freight service had been resumed on its main line between St. Louis and Kansas City, by an agreement with members of the "big four" brotherhoods at Jefferson City, who quit work Saturday. It was believed that the similar trouble at Nevada, Sedalia and other points would be settled on a similar basis, by concessions to the men as to the positions in which guards are placed.

St. N. McNamara, general agent of the passenger department of the Chicago & Alton in St. Louis, said the strike was similar to those that have taken place in sympathy with the striking shopmen on some other roads in different parts of the country, and is reported to be in protest against armed guards patrolling the property. He added that the service on the main lines, between St. Louis, Peoria and Chicago, is not affected, as the main line is in the Northern Division. Trains are also operating without interruption on the Southern Division, he said.

The stopping of passenger service by the Chicago and Alton is the first serious interruption of passenger service out of St. Louis by situations growing out of the shopmen's strike.

Trouble Began at Roodhouse. The Chicago and Alton trouble originated at Roodhouse, Friday, following the explosion of a bomb on the railroad property and activity of armed guards against which most of the employees belonging to the railroad brotherhoods protested.

At St. Louis it was said the firemen precipitated the trouble there by refusing to take engines out on the ground that the equipment was unsafe. Officials of the road denied that equipment was in disrepair or unsafe, and charged that the firemen struck in protest against the presence of United States Deputy Marshals.

J. L. Marquette, division superintendent, said at St. Louis that 116 firemen of the Western Division stopped work Saturday and that the engineers thereupon refused to go out on runs with nonunion firemen. He also denied that the equipment was in disrepair, as claimed by the firemen and engineers.

A conference of the engineers and firemen is in progress at St. Louis today, in a move by the engineers to induce the firemen to return to work. Marquette said, and the company is hopeful that a settlement will be reached before night. Two of the brotherhood officials are attending the conference.

There does not appear to be any connection or other trouble at Kansas City or in this city.

MISSOURI PACIFIC MOVING FREIGHT
The St. Louis offices of the Missouri Pacific received word, at noon today, that freight service had been resumed on its main line between St. Louis and Kansas City, by an agreement with members of the "big four" brotherhoods at Jefferson City, who quit work Saturday. It was believed that the similar trouble at Nevada, Sedalia and other points would be settled on a similar basis, by concessions to the men as to the positions in which guards are placed.

FORMER SCRUGGS PASTOR ORGANIZES NEW CONGREGATION

Capacity Audience Hears the Rev. M. H. Markley at Assembly of God Church.

"WHAT MEANETH THIS?" HIS TEXT

Services Opened Without Usual Repetition of Methodist Orthodox Creed and Singing of Doxology.

The little stone church of the Assembly of God, 4524 McMillan avenue, was filled almost to capacity yesterday morning at the first services conducted by the Rev. M. H. Markley, former pastor of the Scruggs Memorial M. E. Church, South, following his resignation last Friday because of dissension over alleged Pentecostal ceremonies included in the pastor's sermons during the last few months.

The Rev. Mr. Markley, as has been told, had requested the resignation of E. P. McNamara, superintendent of the Sunday school. McNamara refused to resign, and Bishop W. F. Murry, presiding officer of this district, upheld him in his position. The Rev. Mr. Markley's resignation followed.

The orthodox Methodist system was diverged from in the sermon, the Rev. Markley opening his sermon without the usual repetition of the creed and singing of the Doxology. The service began with singing led by C. A. Wood, president of the newly organized board of directors of the followers of Markley. The songs were those used chiefly in revival meetings, but are common in all Methodist churches at any time.

First Money Raised.
A talk was made prior to the sermon, by C. A. Wood, urging that an effort be made to gain new members by asking for suggestions concerning a home for their pastor into which he could move within the next few days. Request for contributions to finance the new order began with the first offering, and a willingness of the earnest congregation to support their belief, Wood said.

The text of Markley's first sermon to his followers was "What Meaneth This?" He quoted from the books of Luke, John and the Acts, reading passages making reference to "speaking with tongues," and the necessity of the "baptism in the Holy Spirit."

Markley began by saying that neither he nor his congregation had anything but a "baptism in the Holy Spirit," but that as long as they could not agree, it was best they separate. "Bishop McMurry is, I hope, one of my best friends," he said, "and I am certain I shall always be his."

Gives History of His Work.
He gave a short history of his 17 years as a Methodist minister, saying that the new movement was nothing strange or fantastic, but a sensible manifestation of the Holy Spirit, readily understandable to those who were in tune with him.

"The blessing of the Pentecost is for today as much as it was for the time of the apostles," he said, "and the Holy Spirit 'is in full orb today.'"

"We wish to emphasize Christ," he said in explanation of the theory of the diversifying methods, "not the works of the burning mine some time this afternoon."

The tragedy of the situation increased when an alpine burst and the electric wiring went out of commission, shutting off light and communication.

The flames are burning in the 4400 and 4500-foot levels. During the morning hours, Supt. Garbarini succeeded in restoring the air line to the 2700-foot level and pipes were installed to carry water down to be used in an effort to extinguish the burning timbers. Up to that time water was carried down into the mines in skips.

The Red Cross is on the scene and a mine rescue crew is going by automobile over mountain roads from Nevada City.

Fumes and smoke poured from the mine opening today—a fairly good omen to the experienced miners, signifying that the greater part of the fumes are coming above, instead of spreading below earth.

The Argonaut mine is about two miles from town. It is one of the famous mines of Amador County, which lies between Eldorado and Calaveras counties and east of Sacramento County. It is in the heart of the country famous for its gold rush days.

Shift Boss Bradshaw and two companions were unconscious when they reached the surface, bringing the news of the disaster. It required two men to get the cages to pass was 1,087 miles from New York, her course being southeasterly, straight to the corner of Brazil.

PROHIBITIONISTS HAVE LOST, APPARENTLY, IN SWEDISH PLEBISCITE

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, Aug. 28.—THE "dry" seem to have lost the day in the Swedish prohibition plebiscite, according to the latest provisional returns available. The figures issued this morning are 772,747 for and 843,636 against.

Yesterday was a day of great excitement throughout Sweden. In all the big cities the squares were crowded by thousands of people awaiting the results.

Street car traffic in Stockholm was suspended, owing to the congestion in the streets.

LIKENESS OF NEGRESS WEIRDLY SHOWN ON DEATH ROOM MIRROR

Photograph of Mulatto Girl, Dead 9 Months, Said to Resist Efforts at Effacement.

By the Associated Press.
SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 28.—At Campit, La., a photographic likeness of a mulatto girl, dead nine months, has appeared on the mirror of the room in which she was placed after her death, according to a report of the phenomenon by C. M. Cunningham, former State Senator.

The girl was a member of the family, mulattoes, who live about five miles from Campit. The body was laid in front of the mirror with a large bouquet clasped in the hands. Next day she was buried and the room in which she was placed since that time by her older sister.

About a month ago it is related, the sister was thrown into violent agitation when she saw what appeared to be a likeness of her dead sister etched on the silvered surface of the mirror.

Gradually the likeness grew until from top to bottom of the mirror, a distance of 18 inches, the photograph of the dead girl was visible, with the bouquet clasped in the hands. The boards on which the body rested, also are clearly visible.

It is the accepted theory that the photograph is the result of action of sunlight on the window panes and the silvered surface of the mirror, although so far as known here, no similar case is on record.

The picture most closely resembles an old-fashioned daguerreotype and efforts to wash or rub it off the mirror, both from the front and back, have proved unsuccessful.

FERGUSON CONCEDES NOMINATION OF MAYFIELD FOR SENATORSHIP

Victor in Texas Primary Run-off, Called on Democrats to Forget the Past and Pull for Victory.

By the Associated Press.
TEMPLE, Tex., Aug. 28.—Former Gov. James E. Ferguson has conceded the nomination of his opponent, Earl B. Mayfield, in the run-off primary Saturday for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

On the face of returns it appears that I am defeated," he said, in a statement to the Associated Press. "I shall not cry or complain. I made a good fight, against great odds, which even the loyalty of my friends could not overcome. I extend to my opponent whatever congratulations he is entitled to."

Ferguson said he would continue his campaign against the Ku Klux Klan. He opposed the Klan in his campaign.

In a statement at Austin, Mayfield called upon "all Democrats to forget the past and pull together for a great victory in November."

So-called Klan candidates are behind in other contests.

ADMINISTRATION IS SKEPTICAL OF FORD SHUTDOWN

Some Men in Government Doubt if Coal Shortage Is Really the Reason for Manufacturer's Action.

CLOSING SAID TO BE SHREWD MOVE

From a Business Viewpoint It Is Said That Nothing Could Be More Desirable at This Time.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Although the news that 100,000 men might be thrown out of employment would ordinarily cause shivers of apprehension to run up and down the political spine of the incumbent administration because of the possible effect on other industries, it cannot be said that official Washington is particularly disturbed over Henry Ford's threat to shut down his plant.

The truth is considerable skepticism exists here as to whether the coal shortage was the real reason for the action of Ford. Many men in the government conversant with the automobile industry credit Ford with a shrewd stroke in seizing upon the coal situation as the pretext for a shutdown when his plants have reached the saturation point of production.

Good Business Move?
The view is expressed for instance that nothing better could happen from a business viewpoint for the Ford plants than a shutdown for a few weeks. This step gives opportunity to hold up all orders for supplies and makes possible the negotiation of new contracts. Some men are heard here that the prospect of an increase in the cost of steel caused Ford to adopt retaliatory measures before the steel manufacturers could squeeze him for a higher price.

But basically government officials who were discussing the move of Henry Ford today declared that the closing of the Ford plants was by no means an unusual step in the automobile trade. The theory was advanced that whenever the production reaches the highest peak there is always a sudden recession when it is discovered that more automobiles have been made than the public can absorb. Ford concedes that his production is at an abnormally high stage and that he was reaching the greatest rate of output in the history of his plants. This, however, is seen as a reason for readjustment on the ground that the dealers will have more than enough Ford cars to handle the demand for months to come. Meanwhile, the shutdown will prove an economy in the long run, for it will permit the making of new contracts on supplies which have already been ordered.

Would Like to Shut Down.
One man who has had considerable experience with automobile production and who now is in the Government has said:

"Many manufacturers would like to shut down every now and then when they reach the peak of production or the saturation point. They try usually to readjust and stretch, which is, after all, difficult and dangerous. The safest way is to shut down entirely and start with a clean slate. This is undoubtedly what Ford has done, for it is inconceivable that Ford, who owns a railroad which connects with one of the largest coal-producing areas in the country, should find it difficult to get enough coal to run his plants."

From a political angle, the news of Ford's action was a subject of some discussion but only as a symptom of the general complications which the coal and rail strikes have made for those members of Congress who are up for re-election this year. Administration officials already admit that unless the country is in a prosperous condition when election time comes a vote of protest will inevitably be registered which will help the Democrats, though as yet no real fear exists that the Republicans will lose control of Congress.

Next 10 Days Crucial.
The next 10 or 15 days will be crucial. The feeling in administration quarters is that industry is on the verge of a great era of prosperity if only the coal and rail strikes can be settled. The President on his return from the Mayflower gave no indication of the course he will follow which for the moment appears to be one of waiting to see whether the railroads can operate efficiently and carry the coal which the bituminous mines are producing.

HERRIN MASSACRE INQUIRY JOB FOR REAL MEN, JUDGE TELLS JURY

ILLEGAL TRAFFIC HERE IN BONDED WHISKY

Liquor Obtained in Kentucky on Forged Orders—Warrants for Three Men.

Arrest by Federal prohibition agents of John Marcus, last Saturday night at the American Annex Hotel, has disclosed bootlegging activities which have resulted in the distribution here of more than 15 cases of bonded whisky obtained on false orders on a distillery at Deatsville, Ky.

Agents had been on the watch for several weeks for bootleggers conducting this Kentucky-St. Louis trade. The first intimation had been when it was discovered the names of State Prohibition Director William H. Allen and his deputy, C. E. Akers, had been forged for use in thought to have been stolen from the office here.

In the last few weeks, the agents assert, 100 cases of whisky were shipped by express to St. Louis, bearing the names of five supposed proprietors of drugstores. Investigation showed that the names and addresses were fictitious. However, the cases of whisky were called for by a negro expressman, and delivered to him.

It was following the negro expressman's arrest several days ago that the apprehension of Marcus resulted. The expressman took the agents to the American Annex Hotel Saturday evening, and there identified Marcus as one of three men for whom he said he had hauled the whisky. The cases were shipped from the Samuels Distillery near Louisville, Ky.

The agents arrested Marcus, confiscating his Locomobile automobile, and 25 cases of bonded whisky said to have been consigned to the fictitious druggists at the office of the American Railway Express Co. The whisky is held as evidence. Marcus was released on $2000 bond, under the charge of transportation of whisky.

Investigation Not to Establish Who Might Be Considered Responsible for Killings but Who Actually Committed Them, Jurist Says in Instructions.

MOST OF PANEL OF 23 MEN FARMERS

They Are Reminded That They Represent People of Illinois and No Considerable Percentage of Williamson County Indorses Crime.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Aug. 28.—Circuit Judge D. T. Hartwell, in instructing the special grand jury, implored to investigate the killing of 19 employees of the Southern Illinois Coal Co. and three union coal miners, near Herrin June 21 and 22, said today:

"There comes in every man's life a time when he can be a trucking coward, a cringing tool, or when he can stand up and be counted as a man. This matter is one to be investigated by real men, who cannot be swayed from their duty, and cannot be driven."

Judge Hartwell said the purpose of the inquiry was not to show who might be considered "responsible" for the killings, but who committed them.

Represent People of Illinois.
"You are not here to settle labor disputes," he said, "or to represent either mine operators or miners, but to represent the people of Illinois. You and I live in this (Williamson) County, and enjoy the protection of its laws."

"It is not a question whether newspaper accounts were true or not. We have been held up as murderers. It has been said that our officers are members of a lawless police mob, that they are kept in office by it and do its bidding. I am not quarreling about this. I take my part of the censure. Whoever fails to do his duty ought to be censured. But no considerable percentage of the people of this county indorses crime."

About 50 persons, including the 23 members of the grand jury, lawyers and reporters, heard the Judge's instructions. Attorney-General Brundage of Illinois and Assistant United States Attorney-General Middlekauff, who has been loaned by the Government to assist the Attorney Duty of Williamson County, were present.

Little interest in the investigation is shown here, and there is no sign of unusual excitement.

How Jury Was Selected.
Judge Hartwell said that the fact that the grand jury had been selected by the state's Attorney, the sheriff having stepped aside voluntarily. It was understood that no coal miner was to be on the jury, but when the venire was called, one man, M. H. Counts, asked to be excused on the ground that he was a miner. He works as a miner part of the time, and at farming the rest of the time.

The Judge said he would not excuse Counts, and reminded him that the inquiry was not "a matter between different callings." He granted four excuses, from the venire of 28, on grounds of health, age and recent jury service. He then added another man, making 23, the stated number.

John Stewart, a farmer, was named as foreman of the jury, and the other members are Counts, Charles Rogers, Henry Becker, Albert Bandy, Rolla B. Clark, James M. Cronin, Henry W. Davidson, Charles Bridges, John Evans, Curtis Harris, Amos Burns, William H. Kimmel, Philip Pluck, R. H. Fenn, cost, William R. Miller, Cash Jackson, Mart Collins, John L. Rushing, T. P. Russell, Ben Westbrook and Thomas J. Russell.

Most of Jurors Farmers.
Most of the grand jurors are farmers. T. P. Russell is a banker at Hurd. Westbrook, the last jurist added, is a real estate dealer here.

In his review of the killings, Judge Hartwell said that the jury should be instructed to investigate the killing of 19 employees of the Southern Illinois Coal Co. and three union coal miners, near Herrin June 21 and 22, said today:

ARMY EXHIBITS MANY AIR STUNTS IN FLYING CIRCUS

Scott Field Scene of Wide Variety of Aerial Demonstrations in Different Kinds of Air Craft.

PARACHUTE JUMPS IN LARGE NUMBER

Only One Man Has an Accident and His Was Caused When Parachute Rope Struck Projection.

Nearly every contrivance of man to get off terra firma and about everything that the army knows about their use was demonstrated yesterday at Scott Field, near Belleville, before a crowd of persons from St. Louis and Illinois towns that came and went throughout the day, reaching a maximum in the early afternoon of several thousand.

At one point during a program that began at 10 a. m. and proceeded without interruption until dark shut out the sky; the air was cluttered with free balloons floating away from a three-hour race, a huge carpet of balloons, a motor blimp whose purring motor was blotted from the ears by the roar of Curtiss Spads and big DH-4s, who dashed in and about the lighter-than-air craft as if to show what they could do in the venom of war.

Many Parachute Jumps.
As for parachute jumps—sergeants, corporals and enlisted men of the balloon companies were jumping all day until they exhausted the post's supply of aerial life preservers. They leaped from the sausage, from the blimp, from the wings of the airplanes, each plunging into some clear space free from the slightest bruise, except a corporal who came down between two hangars on the fringe of the crowd. His parachute rope struck a projection from a hangar door and the corporal was slapped rather harshly onto the beaten ground, though without serious injury.

Stunt flying and even battle tactics are not unfamiliar to St. Louisans by reason of the wartime activities at Scott Field, but yesterday's flights demonstrated the polish which the army airman has acquired since the day of their war emergency novitiate. Perhaps the most striking example was the flight of seven planes in V-shaped formation near the close of the program. The planes—Fokkers, Spads and Curtiss—rose in a semblance of V, quickly perfected it, sailed round and round the field, so closely and compactly that it seemed that the slightest veering or spurt out of position would bring the whole group crashing down, and then landed in formation, an aerial drill of precision and skill.

33 Ships at Field.
The heaviest air fleet that has been seen in this city since the war, 33 ships, including 12 Curtiss, 10 DH-4s, two Spads, one MB-3, one SE-5, one Martin bomber, one pursuit Fokker and one Fokker transport, a total of 33 ships.

The program opened with a triangular race on three-mile legs, piloted in with handicaps by 10 flyers in planes of five types. Lieut. Carter of Chanute Field, flying the MB-3, won. One of the racers got into difficulty and descended in a plowed field, but came scuttling in a short time later.

The potato race was one of spectacular interest and developed skillful piloting by Sergt. Johnson of Selfridge. Three rows of flags were set at separated points on the field. The task was to ascend, circle the field, pick up a flag, ascend, and so on until each of the three contestants had carried off his three flags, the first to land with all three flags in possession to be winner.

Sergt. Johnson won by his accuracy in bringing his ship to stop so that his mechanical hand had only to lean out, dart a few paces and come back with his flag. Each of the sergeant's landings were virtually perfect, exciting the applause even of the noncontending flyers.

Humorous Demonstration.
Capt. Clark and Lieut. Hamilton of Selfridge gave a highly humorous demonstration of an instructor and his pupil in the air. The first ascent was with the pupil at the stick and the instructor as a watchful passenger. The wobbly takeoff and the ship's bumpy course caused one of the enlisted men who acted as announcer to confuse in the spectators. "Oosh, he'll get a terrible bawling," and so it proved, a terribly anticipated one.

The second ascent was the odder's first solo flight, while the instructor of the ground suffered untold agonies. The pupil had trouble with his courage for a takeoff and once in the air, had more trouble with his courage for a descent. It was accomplished in several bounces that caused the same announcer to tell his section of spectators: "It takes a real flier to do that."

An event programmed as a "surprise" proved to be a tail spin, somewhat terrifying proportions by Sergt. Johnson of Selfridge. He ascended to a height announced to be 1,000 feet or until he was a faintly perceptible speck in the sky and then went the nose of his ship down, which the tail revolved into appearance to complete lack of control. When he seemed gone beyond hope, the sergeant came out of the spin, finished it off with a series of loops and glided to a graceful landing.

The stunt flying did not disclose any new evolutions but was performed in the little Spads and SE-5s with nonchalance and dash. There were loops and banks and turns and side slips at low elevations, one of the favorite stunts being a nose dive with motor booming until the plane seemed about to crash into the spectators and then a right or left bank up into the clear. One of the stunts headed straight for a descending parachute as he would attack an enemy. The enlisted man in the parachute waved and warned and shouted, but on the speeding plane came until the parachute jumper abandoned all hope. At that instant the plane did a graceful somersault and scooted away.

There was great interest during the day in the two giants of the assembled fleet—the limousine Fokker and the Martin bomber. The Fokker is a monoplane with a wing spread of 65 feet, the width of the wing being nine feet. The Fokker has a fuselage compartment with leather upholstered seats for eight persons and a luxuriant comparable with the type of automobile from which it came. It flew from McCook field to the meet at the rate of 150 miles an hour and ascended in late afternoon in three flights. On one of these it carried Lieut. Kunze and his sister, as the "wedding party" announced in the program. The giant had all the grace of the smaller planes, ascending as evenly and descending as softly.

Its flight was followed by the Martin bomber, which has a wing spread of 52 feet and whose twin Liberty motors have a lifting power of 30 persons.

During the day the caquet balloon was sent up and brought down innumerable times. The post blimp, piloted by Lieut. Artie Thompson, former St. Louis University football star, was in the air almost continuously. Four free balloons were sent away on a three-hour flight, one landing before it passed from range of vision. A DH-4 gave an exhibition of bombing. There was a parachute ground race, which was an attempt of two officers to race 1000 feet with two parachutes tugging against them. They ran half the distance and then gave up. Two other officers were strapped to two small balloons and leaped, the balloons carrying them 50 or more feet into the air and some hundred feet in distance before they landed. About 1000 top gas balloons were released in one flock, and clouds of carrier pigeons were released from the big caquet. An admission of 50 cents was charged to provide a fund for the construction of a swimming pool at the post.

23 TAKEN IN JEFFERSON COUNTY
GAMBLING RAID FREED ON BOND

Twenty-three St. Louisans arrested on gambling charges in a raid Saturday night on a clubhouse on the Lemay Ferry road near the Meramec River bridge, in Jefferson County, were released at Hillsboro yesterday on bond. The men are to appear at the opening of the September term of Circuit Court at Hillsboro.

Jefferson County officials said they found three dice tables and a roulette wheel in operation at the clubhouse. They seized $3757 found on the tables. The walls were said to be covered with racing form charts. The clubhouse is in Jefferson County, about 800 feet from the Meramec River, which forms the boundary between St. Louis and Jefferson counties at that point.

PROSECUTOR SAYS SLAIN ACTOR HAD NO CHANCE

County Attorney Disbelieves George Cline's Story of the Killing of John Bergen.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—John Bergen, moving picture "daredevil," shot to death Friday night at 919 Undercliff avenue, Edgewater, N. J., the home of George Cline, location man for the Fox Film Corporation, was "murdered without being given a chance for his life," in the opinion of Prosecutor Hart of Bergen County. Hart said yesterday he disbelieved Cline's story of a proposal to Bergen to fight a pistol duel in a darkened upstairs room. He is convinced that when Bergen went to Cline's home at the latter's invitation, he walked into a trap deliberately set and from which it was not meant he should escape alive.

Reported Cline Used Alias.
Another development is that Cline appears to have been living under an alias. Saturday he telegraphed his sister, Miss Margaret Wals of Philadelphia. Yesterday she arrived in Hackensack and visited him in person. One of Mrs. Cline's brothers who visited the set with Miss Wals, when asked why Cline had been using an alias, became confused.

He questioned the statement that Miss Wals was Cline's sister until told that the name in answer to a telegram sent by Cline to that name. None of the members of Cline's family or that of his wife would say anything about the matter. It was recalled that one of the notes found on Bergen referred to Cline as "Klaus George Wals."

Cline told the prosecutor two versions of the tragedy, the only material point of difference being that in the first version he said his wife and her two brothers, Charles and Lawrence Scullion, were witnesses, while in the second he described the death struggle as taking place in his bedroom in the dark, with no others present.

Admitting his first story was invented under the influence of liquor, the story he now says is the truth is that Bergen attacked his wife six weeks ago and he learned of it from her Friday. He then telephoned Bergen to come and "clear up" the matter.

Cline said he, his wife and her brothers talked the matter over with Bergen, who boldly admitted the attack. Then Cline proposed the duel to mount the stairs about 11 p. m. In the room he handed Bergen a German Luger pistol. As Cline reached up to turn out the light, he says, Bergen attempted to fire and shot him in the chest. Bergen's pistol and in the struggle for the Colt, Cline said Bergen was shot.

Mrs. Cline in a Collapse.
Mrs. Cline has been in a collapse since the shooting. She spent yesterday with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Scullion, who live at 192 Undercliff avenue, Edgewater, next to the Cline home. Scullion said the newspapers "got everything upside down." Mrs. Cline would see no one and give out no hints, but before her daughter, Margaret, was born. She was seen yesterday at the home of her father, Hugh Gribben, a retired policeman, at 164 West 12th street. She said Bergen was always "broke" when she knew him and always out of work. Gribben said Bergen never did a good day's work in his life. He never wanted his daughter to marry him. Displaying a revolver the father continued:

"I followed him for days with this after he deserted my little girl. If I had found him I would have shot him. He got out of my house. All he was interested in was his hair and his finger nails and women. I tried to get him on the police force. But he thought he was too good."

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Duke Helie De Talleyrand-Perigord, who also is the thirteenth count of Grignola, and his duchess who formerly was Miss Anna Gould of New York, together with "Tinky" their pedigree Pekinese pup, their secretary and a vast quantity of luggage arrived in San Francisco, yesterday from Portland, Ore.

The Duke and his entourage went straight to the hotel St. Francis. The Duke and Duchess did not bother about the presidential suite, which it had been planned to give them, but accepted something "just as good." Meanwhile, Fred E. Sobey, director of the United States Mint, in the presidential suite, he has occupied since his arrival here several days ago.

EGG STAINING CAUSE AUTO DRIVER' ARREST

Woman, 80, Run Down, Had Been Carrying Basket of Eggs and Tomatoes, Witness Says.

The police, acting on the circumstantial evidence of egg and tomato stains on a man's shirt and cap, in investigation of the automobile accident in which Mrs. Margaret Rieman, 80 years old, 2845 Lemp avenue, was critically injured Saturday, are holding Herman Rosenkranz, 3449 Missouri avenue, and will apply for warrants charging him with felonious wounding and leaving the scene of an accident.

Mrs. Rieman is at the city hospital, unconscious, suffering from a fracture of the skull. She was struck by an automobile, which, the police learned, bore a license issued to Rosenkranz. The driver of the machine fled. Just as the arrest of Rosenkranz was ordered by telephone, the police, saying his machine had been stolen on Gravois avenue at the city limits. He was arrested.

Carried Basket.
The motorman of an eastbound street car which Mrs. Rieman was about to board told policemen that the driver of the machine would surely have been bearded with egg and tomato stains, because the contents of a basket of eggs and tomatoes which Mrs. Rieman carried was thrown all about, some stains being on the automobile. Police Lieutenant McDonnell obtained from Mrs. Rosenkranz a stained gray cap and blue shirt which she said were her husband's. Then the motorman, M. O. Harper of 1735 South Eighth street, identified Rosenkranz as the driver of the machine.

Mrs. Rieman is not expected to survive her injuries. She lived with her daughter, Mrs. Clifton Thierry.

Tetanus Fatal to Youth Hit By Auto on Aug. 13.

Henry Heitzman, 17 years old, a carpenter's helper son of Mrs. Minnie Heitzman, 4723 Varrelmann avenue, died at the city hospital at 12:25 a. m. today from tetanus resulting from injuries suffered at 5:45 p. m. Aug. 13, when knocked from his motor cycle by an automobile at King's highway and Elchenberger street. His right foot was crushed and he suffered the loss of all toes of that foot.

Heitzman's motor cycle struck the right rear wheel of a machine driven by George Fey, 54, a city fireman, 4022 Bates street, who was driving north on King's highway and turning west into Elchenberger street.

Heitzman was driving south. Fey was not arrested at the time because the accident was held to be unavoidable. He was notified today to appear at the coroner's inquest tomorrow.

16 Persons Injured in Auto Accidents
Sixteen persons were injured in nine automobile accidents in St. Louis and nearby yesterday and today and including one Saturday not previously reported.

MORRIS, Ill., Aug. 28.—A swimming pool is under construction at the hotel St. Francis. The pool will be supplied with water from a deep well which has been drilled 172 feet in the ground.

At Bergen's home, 214 East 115th street, the actor's body lay in the front room, ready for burial today. James Bergen, a brother, was seen in the afternoon and repeated what he and other members of the family said: "Jack never married anybody."

Fokker Sets New Motorless Air Mark With Passenger

Dutch Plane Inventor, Performing Stunts as Daring as Those Done in Motor Machines, Up 13 Minutes.

By the Associated Press.
FULDA, Germany, Aug. 28.—Anthony Fokker, the Dutch airplane inventor, yesterday established a world record in motorless aviation by remaining in the air 13 minutes with a passenger in a biplane constructed by himself. Fokker made evolutions in the air during his test as daring as those made in a power-driven machine.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Aug. 28.—Herr Hentzen, the student aviator of the Hanover Technical School, has been awarded the grand prize of 50,000 marks for his achievements in this year's glider contest on the Wasserkuppe.

Johanne Maertens also was awarded the special prize of 12,000 marks for making his record flight of 55 minutes which later was bettered by Hentzen with records of 2 hours and 10 seconds and three hours and 7 minutes.

Like Great Buzzard Over Prey.
So impressive was the spectacle of Hentzen's bird-like maneuvers that this record flight continues to be the subject of discussion. The wind on Thursday had ranged from 14 to 16 meters a second, and it was not until five o'clock in the afternoon that he decided to test his motorless craft "Vampire."

The glider, rose lazily, almost in a perpendicular line, then rested gracefully and poised several hundred meters up. It drifted indolently backward, a prey to suddenly shifting winds, again it veered confidently through the air, describing picturesque circles against a blue background of sky. The machine once mounted to a height of 250 meters.

The glider bore a striking resemblance to a great buzzard hovering restlessly over an object upon which it was about to swoop. An hour passed and the watching group settled back with the remark: "It is Hentzen up there. He may be expected to remain a little longer, though the wind is stronger than that he ran into several days ago."

Great Feat Accomplished.

The second hour went by and the spectators took their gaze off the soaring plane long enough to note that dusk already was settling. A cool breeze had sprung up and a fire was built to guide the solitary aviator above and to keep warm the watchers below.

Three hours had been registered when the enthusiasts saw the object of their strained watching glide into the valley of the Fulda river not far away. A round of applause broke with the realization that a great achievement had been witnessed.

In connection with the field of possibilities which commentators find has been opened by Hentzen's accomplishments, there is much discussion regarding the utilization of Wasserkuppe the coming winter for experimenting with gliders on skis. Such attempts were made last year, but had to be abandoned because the extreme weather froze the glue used in constructing the machines. It is hoped to overcome this difficulty by using some other means of joining the wooden parts of the glider sections. The German Ski Club already is working on the project.

PLANE MARK OF 209 MILES AN HOUR REPORTED SET BY LIEUT. BRAKPAPA, ITALIAN

Previous Record of 205 Miles Made in 1921 by Sadi Lecoq, French Aviator.

TURIN, Italy, Aug. 28.—LIEUT. BRAKPAPA yesterday in an airplane flew at a speed of 336 1/2 kilometers (about 209.3 miles) an hour. This is said to be a world record. The previous speed record for an airplane was made by Sadi Lecoq, a French aviator, Sept. 26, 1921, who flew 265.222 miles an hour. Lecoq used a 300-horsepower machine. The flight was made in Paris.

SHERIFF'S MISTAKE COSTS LIFE AND WOUNDING OF 4 OTHERS

By the Associated Press.
GREENVILLE, Ky., Aug. 28.—Because of incorrect information as to the location of the home of a man for whom he had a warrant, Sheriff W. S. Mathis, 55, is dead; his son, Orville Mathis, 25, a deputy sheriff, is in a Louisville hospital; James Ennis, 72, and his daughter, Mrs. Elk Smith, 41, are probably mortally wounded and another daughter of Ennis, Miss Jennie Ennis, 24, is severely wounded.

Saturday night Sheriff Mathis went to the home of Ennis, believing it was the abode of a man for whom a warrant had been sworn. When Ennis, who has always been a law-abiding citizen, refused to open the door, it was forced open by Mathis. As the officer crossed the threshold, Ennis fired with a double-barreled shotgun, fatally wounding Mathis. Orville Mathis drew at Ennis with a revolver, wounding Miss Ennis. Ennis then fired, wounding Orville Mathis.

Dennis Mathis, a nephew of the slain man, also a deputy sheriff, opened fire through a window of the house, wounding Ennis and Mrs. Smith, who was in bed.

FARM HORSE STILL FILLS NEEDED PLACE

Veterinarian at Annual Meeting Says Demand for Saddle Horses Exceeds Supply.

Despite the rapid increase in the use of tractors for agricultural work, the horse continues to be the logical and economical power on the average American farm, Dr. A. T. Kinsey of Kansas City, president of the American Veterinary Medical Association, declared this morning in an address at the Planters Hotel, which opened the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the association.

He predicted a steady increase in demand for good draft horses, and said that the present demand for saddle horses exceeded the supply. He said that this would prevent the veterinarian from being replaced by the automobile mechanic, as "veterinary service alone insures the livestock industry against the ravages of disease and is indispensable in the conservation of the health of nations."

The veterinarian's service in rural communities has changed, Dr. Kinsey said, from administering medical and surgical relief in individual cases only to that of chiefly preventing or controlling disease in herd units. The veterinarian of today is an immunologist, while the one of 20 years ago was a surgeon.

More attention to sex hygiene by veterinarians was urged, as greater efficiency in breeding was said to be one of the most important economic problems of the livestock industry. Possibilities of wider poultry practice were pointed out and growing interest reported in poultry clinics.

Dr. Kinsey suggested that the association take action favoring retention by the Chemical Foundation of German chemical patents sold to the concern during the war under the alien property act. This sale has been under fire in Congress and return of the patents has been demanded. The value of the chemicals and dyestuffs manufactured under these patents to American industries and scientific research could not be overestimated, Kinsey said. Approximately 300 delegates and visitors are at the convention, which closes Friday afternoon. Sectional meetings will be held Tuesday and Friday, and several clinics will be conducted Wednesday and Thursday in East St. Louis. There will be several exhibits at the Planters Hotel in connection with the convention.

ANTOPSY SHOWS SKULL OF TEACHER FRACTURED
Miss Edna Skinner at First Believed to Have Died in Explosion of Stove.

By Associated Press.
BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Aug. 22.—The skull of Miss Edna Skinner, Bloomington school teacher, who, it was at first believed, died in the explosion of a gasoline stove at the home of a relative in Greeley, Colo., has been fractured, authorities said today, after examination of the young woman's body at Leroy, Ill. The authorities said that, in addition to the fracture, which they contended could not have been caused by a fall, several cuts were found on the face. The stove, they said, did not burst in the explosion. Police at Greeley have reported the discovery of two insurance policies on for $2500 and the other for $1000, carried by Miss Skinner, and acting as beneficiary. The autopsy was conducted by District Attorney Louis B. Reed of Greeley and J. E. Hamilton, special investigator from the District Attorney's office. Two brothers of Love appeared at the autopsy, demanding to be present. The request was granted.

F. S. PEABODY, COAL OPERATOR, FOUND DEAD BESIDE HORSE

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—F. S. Peabody, 41 years old, one of the country's largest coal operators, died yesterday after suffering a stroke while riding on his farm near Mendota. His horse was found standing over his body, which was on the ground as though he had fallen from the saddle. The tragedy took place during the hot part of the season on the Peabody estate. He started out with a party of 15 or 20 friends, but became separated from the party and when he returned to the house and found him absent, a search was begun. Physicians said that Peabody had suffered a stroke while on his horse and had fallen from the saddle. Peabody was the founder and president of the Peabody Coal Co. During the war he was chairman of the Coal Committee of the National Council of Defense. He had been active in Democratic politics for many years and in 1920 was a candidate for the nomination for the United States Senate.

HAVE RIOTERS ATTACK POLICE

Numerous Persons Hurt on Both Sides in New Strike Disturbance.
By Associated Press.
HAYRE, Aug. 22.—There was further fighting yesterday between strikers and troops, when strikers made an attack on mounted gendarmes in the Rupe Clovis, near the Franklin Club about 5:30 p. m. Numerous persons on both sides were wounded, but the fighting was not as serious as that of Saturday night, when at least two persons were killed and many others injured. Saturday night the strikers dug trenches in the avenue Cours de la Republique with the soldiers bivouacking a few hundred yards away. Additional reinforcement of husar and infantry reached the city and Gen. Dechenne arrived and took command of the troops.

The Cards Have Arrived at the Stage of the Game When an Open Date Looks Like a Winning Streak

Cardinals' Pennant Hopes Blasted by Giants' Clean Sweep in "Crucial" Series

Rickymen, Shoved Into Third Place Yesterday by Third Consecutive Defeat at New York's Hands, Must Win 28 and Can Lose Only Five Games to Finish First.

By Joseph F. Holland.

Hugh McQuillan cost the World's Champion New York Giants 1922 pennant three weeks ago. Five years ago Bill Sherdel cost the Cardinals something like $100. Yet there are 19,000 St. Louis fans who slipped out of Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon wondering whether Bill Sherdel, who was walloped and slammed all over the terrain, was really worth 19,000 less than the prepossessing McQuillan who opposed him.

Bill and Mack were rival pitchers as the final game of the series between the Giants and Cardinals began. McQuillan managed to finish out the game solely because of the strength of the New York attack. When the smoke of battle cleared away, as smoke invariably does every place except Pittsburgh, the Giants had won their third consecutive victory of the series. The score was 12 to 5.

The defeat dropped the Cardinals into third place, a half game behind the Chicago Cubs. Incidentally, the Cubs call here for two games tomorrow and Wednesday, at which time the Cardinals will have an opportunity to regain their former position in the race.

McQuillan Not Effective.

It was not the fault of McQuillan, yesterday, that the Cardinals lost and slipped to third place. Had the issue been left solely to him, Branch Rickie would not today be seventh and one-half games behind the Giants. New York took the title of master of ceremonies right out of McQuillan's hands and pounded out enough runs to make the ultimate result beyond doubt.

The $100,000 beauty was hit safely fourteen times and the Cardinal total base count reached 28, an average of two bases to the hit. Seven of the hits were for extra bases and one of them was Rogers Hornsby's thirty-second home-run of the season, a drive over the right

Hornsby's 32d-Homer One of Three Made By Cards; Team Hits for 28-Base Total

The Giants finally amassed 18 solid wallops, four more than the Cardinals made; but their extra base total was not as good. With four additional safeties, they lacked one base of tying the Cardinal total of 28 bases for 14 hits. Ross Young's home run into the right field bleachers in the fourth was the only homer attached to the Giant standard.

There was one noticeable feature, yesterday. The burning, biting, scorching attrition in the stands were other at home, disgusted, or they did not have the courage to disperse "razzberries" as freely as on previous occasions. It was a well-earned 19,000 that saw the World's Champions triumph. There seemed to be a general acceptance of the situation. Inasmuch as the old king was dead, they hailed the new king. What withering sarcasm was withheld from the Cardinal ranks was freely dispensed to Frank Snyder and Heinie Groh. These two gentlemen were the targets of constant gibes and it is doubtful if Hornsby's homer drew a greater volume of real lung-potter than did Frank Snyder, when he allowed a third strike to be called on him.

Glad They're Gone.

It was the final appearance of the Giants here this year; that is unless the Browns entertain them in the world's series fall. They have proved themselves to be real champions and the Cardinal attack is the only department of the game in which they offered New York any

GIANTS BUY PITCHER FROM INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 28.—Carmen Hill, right-hand pitcher of the Indianapolis (American Association) team, has been sold to the New York National. It was announced today. It is understood that no cash was involved, but that the New York team will give the Indianapolis club four players at the opening of next season in exchange for Hill.

If the Browns Don't Bring Home the Bacon, the Fat's in the Fire as Far as St. Louis Is Concerned

Browns to Reach 95 Victories Must Win 22 Contests

Club Is to Accomplish This feat Only 8 of Remaining Games Can Be Lost.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Including today's game here with the Yankees, the Browns have 30 games to play before the close of the pennant race. There remain seven games to be played on the road and at this time the Browns must win five to remain in the running for the American League championship.

From New York the team goes to Cleveland and, after Cleveland, to Detroit. Three games will be played in each of the latter two cities. The victory secured by Harry Hellmann, star slugger of the Tigers, enhances the chances of the St. Louis club. Hellmann has been a most obnoxious person in previous meetings. It is probable that the Browns will take two out of the three games at Detroit and a like number at Cleveland. It is therefore essential that they win today.

Returning home the Brownies play every club in the league for a total of 22 games. When baseball men of experience and men without bias discuss the relative chances of the Browns and the Yanks they point to the long stay at home of the St. Louis club and they are wont to remark: "The Browns are a hard club to beat on their home grounds."

Of that total of 22 games at home the Browns play four with the Tigers and four with the Indians. These two clubs will probably play each other in St. Louis and if the Browns lose three out of four to either Detroit or Cleveland they will find themselves in a most unpleasant predicament.

As the situation now shapes itself, the Browns, to be reasonably sure of the flag, should win 22 of the remaining 30 games to win the pennant.

That would give them 95 victories for the season and it has been estimated that this will be a sufficient number of victories for either the Browns or the Yanks to finish in first place.

Which a total of victories would mean that the Browns would lose only 13 games between now and the end of the campaign.

To put the matter in brief form, the Browns, to assure the flag, ought to accomplish the following:

Win out of the remaining games—
from New York 3 out of 4;
from Cleveland 4 out of 7;
from Detroit 3 out of 3;
from Philadelphia 3 out of 3;
from Washington, 3 out of 3; and from Chicago, 2 out of 2.

Such a performance would give the team 22 victories and 8 defeats, a performance which would win the pennant. The Browns' task will be lightened if it requires only 90 victories to "cop" the flag. This is not at all unlikely.

During the next two weeks New York will have much the better of the schedules. While the Browns are fighting their way through games with Cleveland and Detroit, the Yankees will be playing the tail-end clubs of the league—Boston, Philadelphia and Washington.

Tanks Should Increase Lead.
It is probable that, within the next two weeks, New York will increase its lead in the fight for the pennant. Of its remaining games, the Yanks have six with Boston, 6 with Washington and 6 with Philadelphia, a total of 17 games with weak, league clubs. That is most significant break in the schedule. During the same period the Browns play three same teams only 9 games.

It is reasonable to assume that the Yanks will not lose more than four of these 17 games. Walter Johnson and McGraw may each win a game for Washington; Rommel should win one for Philadelphia, and Jack Quinn or Pennock may win one game for Boston.

And then, with the Yanks on the road in the west for the last two weeks of the season, the final word will be said in the pennant debate. It is expected by close observers that Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago will put up the fight of their lives against New York.

In every city in the circuit there exists a bitter animosity toward the New York club, if not toward the Yankee players. It is no secret that when they take the field against the Yanks they will be moved by a far greater incentive than mere desire to play good baseball.

If events transpire as anticipated, the Yanks will win about 19 games out of their remaining 31 and the Browns, winning 22 out of their remaining 20, will breeze into first place, pennant winners.

There is mere calculation, but it is conceded generally that Walter Johnson, McGraw, Quinn, Pillele, Robertson, Faber, Ehmeke or Dause Shocker, Davis and Pettit should each be effectively against New York in this final pennant stretch.

Mitchell-Duncan Beaten.
NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Tommy Armour and Cuthbert Butchart defeated Mitchell-Duncan, English golf professionals, 1 up, in an 18-hole four-ball match at the Westchester Hills Golf Club.

Saratoga Championship Special Is Called Off; Big Four Not to Meet

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 28.—President Richard T. Wilson Jr. of the Saratoga Association announced yesterday that the 5-year-old special championship race designated to bring Bunting, Kai Sang, Pilly and Whiskaway together at a mile and a quarter, which was to have been run Saturday afternoon had been abandoned.

The proposed race was a sporting event, the owners of the respective horses having consented to run for a trophy in order to recompense the crowd which had gathered to see the same horses measure strides in the time-honored Travers Stakes and which was riddled with scratches because of the muddy track.

When the track was heavy on Saturday last, it was proposed to have the Special run on Tuesday of this week. This date coming so close to the Saratoga Cup which is to be run on Thursday, he closing day of the meeting, probably interfered with the engagements of some of the colts mentioned for the special and last night's announcement followed.

Dundee Battles Martin Tonight For Junior Title

Also Matched to Box Willie Jackson, at Ebbets Field, on Sept. 6.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Johnny Dundee, junior, lightweight champion, who defends his title tonight against Vincent "Pepper" Martin in a 15-round bout at the New York Velodrome, was matched yesterday to battle the same division against Willie Jackson at Ebbets Field on the night of Wednesday, Sept. 6.

The bout at the Velodrome tonight will mark the first meeting between Dundee and Martin, and the junior champion rules a favorite at 8 to 5 to win. They will weigh in at 125 pounds in weight. Dundee will enter the ring at 125 pounds and Martin 130. The challenger has kept his weight up for the purpose of carrying all his strength into the ring with him. Pepper thinks that Dundee is ready to take the big flop, and he is elated over the fact that he is to see the first chance at the Italian. Dundee has been stopped once in his 365 battles. Willie Jackson scoring the K. O.

That is not all. Today the team is on the brink of second division. It is only one-half game out of fourth place and a game and one-half out of fifth position. If the team continues playing at the rate it has performed for over a month, it will surely land fifth, or worse.

Seattle Buys Pitcher.
BRISTOL, Va., Aug. 28.—Charles Williams, pitcher for the Bristol club in the Appalachian League, has been sold to the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League. It was announced today. Williams has allowed only one run in the last 25 innings he has pitched. He is a right-hander.

It is to Weep.
ON its last Eastern trip the Cardinals' pitching staff began to crumble. Sherdell, the only ace on the staff, weakened from overwork and today the team is without one dependable nine-inning hurler.

The Eastern trip resulted in 7 victories and 8 defeats. The present home stand has seen the team lose 10 games and win only 2. The combined showing of the club for the last month or more is 10 victories out of 28 games—a percentage of 357. On its present home stand the team has a percentage of .231—just hopeless.

Statistics of the recent home stand are pitiable, in that they show the team, in spite of a winning punch, is a pitiable failure. Here is a comparison of statistics, team by team:

TEAMS. W. L. H. R. E.
Cubs ..... 3 0 42 40 3

Cards ..... 1 1 24 17 4
Giants ..... 3 0 40 24 2

This analysis shows that the Cardinals and opponents fared as follows in totals:

Opponents ..... 10 3 154 98 15

No comment is needed. The skids are greased and the way is clear, with apparently no sand on the track to prevent a slide. If Rickey can lift his team out of its slump and hold it steady at its present status he will be the Miracle Man of the year. The club has no pitching strength to check

Wray's Column

Kiss It Goodby, Bo.

If you can picture the sun setting down-east or the dodo bird warbling a love ditty to the pterodactyl, you can visualize the Cardinals winning the 1922 National League pennant. But after visualizing the same, we recommend that you get a new bootlegger, right away.

The sobering effect of cold facts will do you good, if you feel that way about the Rickenbackers and the pennant. These tell a sorry tale of utter collapse by a machine that erstwhile was pounding all foes into submission with its terrible big guns.

The big guns remain; they are still in action; but their position has been exposed and the combined fire of the enemy artillery has ridden the Rickey pitching staff and the team's defenses until the only thing that remains is to run up the white flag.

To win the pennant the Cardinals will have to win 28 games and can afford to lose only five, figuring 95 games as the winning team's final portion of victories.

That is not all. Today the team is on the brink of second division. It is only one-half game out of fourth place and a game and one-half out of fifth position. If the team continues playing at the rate it has performed for over a month, it will surely land fifth, or worse.

Chicago & Alton Railroad, 428 Beaman's Bank BuildingBARTHOLDT BACK FROM LONG TOUR OF GERMANYFormer Congressman to Report to Harding and Leave for St.
Louis Wednesday.

Richard Bartholdt, for 22 years a member of Congress from St. Louis, arrived in Washington yesterday after passing 14 months in Germany and Switzerland, and will leave Washington Wednesday for his home here. He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Bartholdt, whose health had been poor.

While in Washington Bartholdt expects to see President Harding, in response to the latter's request, made before Bartholdt's departure. It is expected that first-hand observations of conditions in Germany will be given to the President.

Bartholdt's statement.

A statement briefly outlining conditions in Germany, issued by Bartholdt in Washington yesterday, follows:

"Unless substantial aid is extended to Germany immediately, that country will surely succumb to bolshevism, in spite of the brave fight the forces of law and order have been putting up against the reds. By substantial aid I mean not only a loan and moratorium, but a reduction to a reasonable amount the so-called reparations and a general revision of the Versailles treaty."

"The honest endeavor of the World Government to live up to the monstrous conditions of the peace treaty against strong opposition at home, deserves all possible encouragement on the part of the entire country. Instead, France has been permitted to harass, humiliate and cripple that government and to continue its relentless policy of destroying Germany altogether. In other words, Chancellor Wirth and his Cabinet have been confronted by two wars ever since they came into power, the one waged by France for the destruction of Germany and the other waged by the Reds for the establishment of bolshevism or its German equivalent. If Germany falls, the Gibraltar against the forces of destruction falls, and after that who can tell what will happen to France, to England or even the United States?"

The Living Conditions.

"Talking about starvation in Germany, let me tell you that for many months past the middle classes as well as intellectuals, officials, professors, teachers and students have been unable to buy either meat, butter, eggs or coffee; in fact, they are living like Chinese coolies, a condition of affairs most distressful to our civilization and to the so-called statesmen who are now dominating the world. While the atrocious blockade lasted, rich and poor in Germany were in the same boat; they starved because nothing was to be had. Now conditions are infinitely worse because sufficient food is displayed in stores, but the vast majority of the people are unable to buy it."

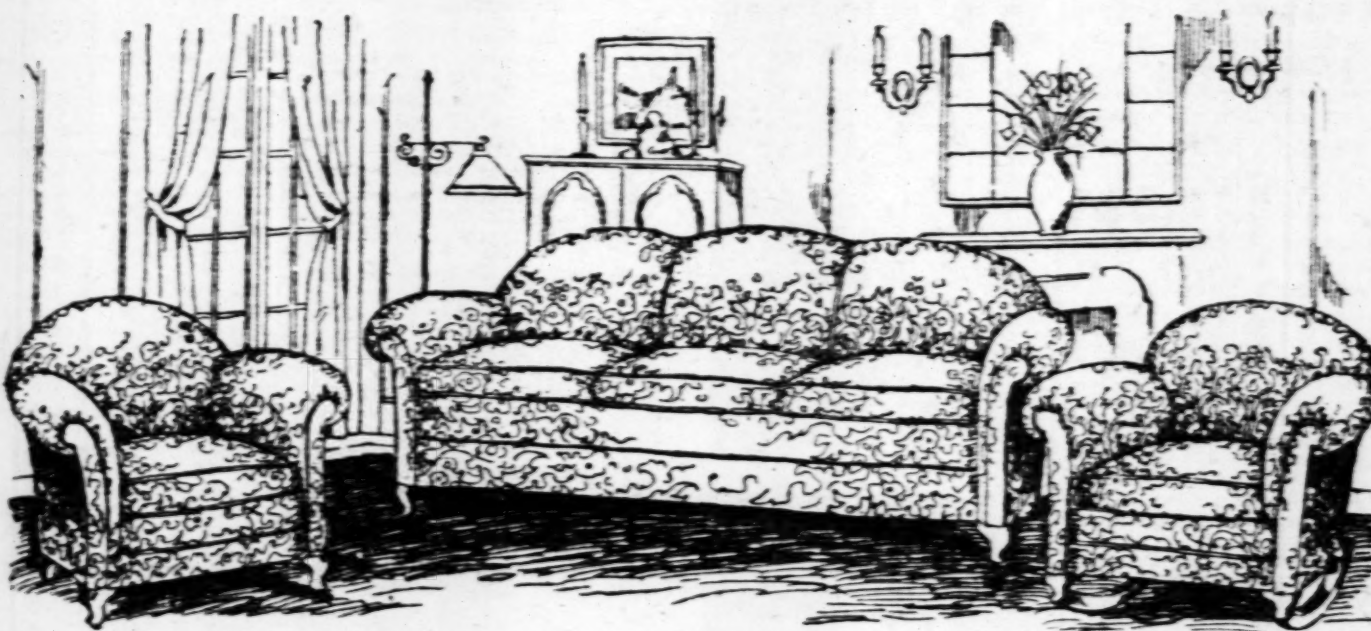

"As an American, proud of my country, I wonder how long our great and generous nation will stand by with folded arms while another nation, a sister republic, is drowning? Is there a single man in the United States who believes that the success of Foulner's policy of destruction would in any way redound to the benefit of our country?"

HINTON HOPES TO GET NEW START THURSDAY

New York-to-Brazil Flying Party
En Route to Key West to Make Preparations.

By GEORGE T. BYE.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-
Dispatch and New York World
on Sampaio Correia Flight.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World
and the Post-Dispatch.)
HAVANA, Aug. 27.—Another leg of our journey back to the mainland
of North America was completed with our arrival here this afternoon.

Members of the New York-to-Brazil expedition are now counting the hours until Pilot Hinton climbs
into the cockpit of the sister seaplane of the Campaio Correia at Peraicola and signals "Let's go."
We hope this will be about Thursday.

The widespread interest in the flight was indicated by the welcome
he received here. It seemed as if the entire city was at the station.
The reception committee was headed by the Brazilian Ambassador, A.
Vellozo Rebello.

We were overwhelmed with courtesies, including many invitations to dinners and motor rides. Holland
B. Juddkins, manager of the Hotel Sevilla, even thanked us for making reservations at his hotel and be-lieged that we accept his hospitality without payment.

We leave Monday morning at 10 o'clock by steamer for Key West.
We are due to arrive there at 7 o'clock Monday night. Special arrangements have been made to expedite the trip. Our train was 20 hours traveling the 550 miles from Santiago to Havana.

For the first time since we landed in Windward Passage last Tuesday night we had a chance to check up our missing effects. Hinton lost all his clothes, excepting the "monkey suit" he was wearing. Dr.
Martins lost the costly navigation instruments that had been presented to the party in New York, also the crew's medicine chest. In addition, he was without a stitch in the way of clothing when rescued. He had doffed his flying suit, shoes, etc.,
in the expectation of a forced swim-to land. Wilsheusen, the mechanician, lost most of his clothes and a set of valuable tools he had spent a lifetime in collecting. I lost the Post-Dispatch's and The World's new $250 camera and some clothes.
My portable typewriter was ruined
by salt water.

All the caps and goggles were lost, but Martins saved every letter given to him for delivery in Rio De Janeiro and the two American and Brazilian silk flags presented to the party in New York. Baltzell lost 19,000 feet of film and one tripod.
But he's happy, for, as has been said, he saved his camera.

MURGUIA REPORTED AT HEAD OF MEXICAN REVOLUTIONISTS

Former Carranzista General Said to Have Crossed Rio Grande, Meeting Force of 500.

By the Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 28.—
Reports that Gen. Francisco Murguia, former Carranzista General in the Mexican army, with a band of officers, including Gen. Camillo Aguirre, son-in-law of the late President Carranza, had left this city last Wednesday, crossed the Rio Grande at a point below Brownsville, and were met on the Mexican side of the river by a band of more than 500 revolutionists, were confirmed yesterday by Mrs. Francisco Murguia, wife of the General, at the home of the General in this city. Another band co-operating with Murguia, crossed, it is said, near Laredo.

"I know that they left here and have crossed the river. I have received a token from my husband
since that tells me he is in Mexico and is well," said Mrs. Murguia. In the party in addition to Gen. Aguirre were Brigadier-General Eduardo Mendez, Col. Rafael Pracellina,
Col. Alberto Salinas, Col. Antonio
Romero, Lieutenant-Colonel Abiar-
do Abrego, five doctors, 14 telegraph operators and three wireless operators with broadcasting outfit. Murguia, it is believed, is headed toward the oil fields of Tampico.

A Comfortable Baby Never Cries

Most of Baby's discomforts are due to skin troubles. Baby's skin is as sensitive as a rose petal. So think what suffering is caused by the friction of damp diapers which rub the skin all raw, by prickly heat and all of the other rashes that keep Baby unhappy.
Please try Kora-Konia on Baby. It is impossible to tell in print how wonderfully this amazing powder keeps and protects Baby's tender skin. Just try
it. In just a little while the rashes go —raw spots heal. And the waterproof, velvety film of powder keeps for hours, protecting the skin from friction.
Don't let Baby suffer another hour—
buy Kora-Konia at your druggist's.
Made by Mennen—not a Talcum.

MODERATE DROP IN SECURITIES ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Rails Uniformly Lower— Marked Weakness in French Issues Feature of Bond Market—Rally in Franc and Mark.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today.

Apprehensions over the hard coal situation and uncertainty as to the government's attitude toward the strikes was reflected in a moderate decline in security prices. Signs of short selling were not lacking. But activity was on a smaller scale than on recent days and the reaction evidently was due in part to a slackening of demand. Rails were uniformly lower, the active issues losing slightly more than 1 point. While sentiment declined among industrialists, there were numerous exceptions to the general trend in this department. In bonds the feature was marked weakness in French issues, the 7 1/2% loan about 2 points at 94. The various French obligations are in fact, from 8 to 15 points below the prices ruling in April. Speculative rails were softer. Call money held at 1 1/2 until the middle of the last hour when it was raised to 1 3/4 per cent.

Rally in Franc and Mark.

Irregularity prevailed among the foreign exchanges, the currencies of the continental allies and the German mark rallied after recent declines. The recovery seemed based on a reversal in sentiment after recent extreme pessimism. This interpretation of the movement was strengthened by the fact that the monies of the former neutrals, which have risen on the recent slump in the market were lower today. Special confirmation for this theory is supplied by the fact that the recovery in this unit was accompanied by a decline in the Reichsbank circulation. This increase was accompanied by an announcement that the Reichsbank discount rate has been raised from 4 to 7 per cent. The increase is explained by the currency shortage in Germany, which in turn is a measure of relatively more rapid shrinkage in the mark's external value as compared with the supply of money at home. The best prices of the morning were not maintained. The French franc, which had risen to 172 cents, reacted to 164 cents, while the previous close, 165 cents, which had recovered 1 point at 164 cents, a considerable volume of commercial bills apparently was raised forth by the rally. Offerings of such bills would also explain a decline in sterling to 144 1/2, this price representing 1 1/2 points at 146 1/2 cents.

DISGUSTED WITH PERFORMANCES OF REPUBLICAN PARTY

President of Sugar Refining Company and Director of Corporations Refuses Campaign Contributions.

SAYS LITTLE CLIQUE CONTROLS CONGRESS

Charles M. Warner, Republican for 55 Years, Says Tariff Measure Was Wholly Unnecessary.

By CHARLES S. HAND,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Soliciting
my interests for contributions and amending that the Democrats would have an overturn in the House of Representatives as a "repudiation of President Harding" and "his defeat
two years hence" the Republican committee is sending out an appeal for checks "large and small."

More than one captain of industry has indignantly notified the committee that so long as the party is controlled by a self-seeking clique in the Senate that has betrayed the party's principles and campaign promises, neither money nor votes will be accorded here.
Several men of large wealth, always relied upon for big donations, have notified the Congressional Campaign Committee that the party must be "disciplined" through the election of a Democratic House of Representatives.

One of the party's most liberal supporters, Charles M. Warner, president of the Warner Sugar and Refining Co., head of the Warner-Quinn Asphalt Co. and director in many corporations, has replied to a begging letter in no uncertain terms.
He frankly declares the "people are disgusted with the present performances of the Republican party," that those in control are "drunk with power" and the only corrective measure is to elect a Democratic House this fall.

Warner, who has voted the Republican ticket for 55 years and given liberally of his vast wealth to help the party in power, was asked for financial aid in a letter dated Aug. 9 and signed by M. E. Alles, president of Riggs National Bank, Washington, D. C., and treasurer of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee. Alles wrote that the Democratic leaders in and out of Congress were following no affirmative course and viewing with satisfaction such of the measures they have passed as we have been unable to carry away in so short a time.

"The simple business of President Harding," continued Alles' letter,
"has been a series of blunders. In a situation whose difficulties are recognized by all, are so evident as to make a direct attack upon him out of the question. Even partisanship has not blinded them to that.
"But if by any mischance they should win this fall's election, no one doubts that they will halt it as a repudiation of President Harding, as a reverser of his defeat two years
hence and that we will have a Congress determined to destroy him and his program if it can."

"Too Many Thoughtless People."
"We have no doubt that men of your type see this, but there are too many who do not. They are too stupid to think that all of the ills we have inherited can be cured at once by the passage of laws. With the American people stable in the face of worldwide financial confusion, with Liberty Bonds at par or better, industry thriving and unemployment rapidly becoming a thing of the past, it seems likely that what is left of our representative platform will be wiped out before election time. Yet we believe you will agree with us it is essential to get the facts before the country and take no chance that it
be annulled by demagoguery and misrepresentation.

"Our campaign, therefore, must be educational and will require funds to carry it on. We hope you can assist
with a contribution at this time.
A check, large or small, will be respected and you can help now to some extent at least. Send us a check if you can, but in any event we shall
be pleased to hear from you as to the
check in your section and to have any suggestions you may see fit to offer."

Availing himself of the invitation
to report "as to the outlook in your section," Warner, on Aug. 11, wrote
the following letter:
"My dear Mr. Alles: I have your letter of Aug. 9, in which you ask
my co-operation to secure the election of a Republican Congress in November. I have voted the Republican ticket for 55 years and have made contributions whenever requested by the Republican party.

Criticism of Tariff Bill.
"You ask me if I have observed
the Democrats, true to form,
becoming so bad that engineers can't
enter the cab of a locomotive."

ATTACK ON LAST WILL OF NORTHCLIFFE BEGUN

Control of Late Publicist's Press Believed to Hinge on Outcome of Litigation.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 28.—The ownership of the London Times and the policy of the late Lord Northcliffe's leading newspaper are questions which dominate the present. Incidentally, it was learned that there is to be a contest over Lord North-cliffe's will, and that three caveats
have been entered against its probate. It now develops that Lord Northcliffe made the will on the eve of his death, which occurred on the shortly before his death, of which the sole executor is Lady Northcliffe.

The admitting of the will to probate will end all speculation concerning its contents. There are those who believe that Lord Northcliffe took steps perpetually to dominate the policies of the Times by some sort of organization similar to the Cecil Rhodes trust, or the Rockefeller Foundation. James L. Garvin, in the Observer, mentions possible buyers of the Times, naming Sir John Ellerman, the second large shareholder in the paper, and Lord Rothemann, Viscount Northcliffe's
brother, who, if conditions permitted, would buy the Times for his heir, Edmund Harcourt.

Another Possible Buyer.
Garvin also considers Sir William Berry as a prospective buyer. Sir William already is a power in Fleet Street, as the owner of the Sunday Times. Among Garvin's other guesses is Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the Express, whose development in recent years has been comparable with that of the Sunday Times. Garvin says that any attempt by outsiders to get control of the Times will fail.

they a right to feel disappointed
and dissatisfied?
"What has the Republican Congress done to cheapen the cost of living? What pledge has it redeemed? We are trying to bring the cost of labor down, but how can you expect to accomplish and sat-

out before election time. Yet we
believe you will agree with us it is essential to get the facts before the
country and take no chance that it
be annulled by demagoguery and mis-
representation.

"Our campaign, therefore, must be
educational and will require funds to
carry it on. We hope you can assist
with a contribution at this time.
A check, large or small, will be respected and you can help now to some extent at least. Send us a check if
you can, but in any event we shall
check in your section and to have
offer."

Availing himself of the invitation
to report "as to the outlook in your
section," Warner, on Aug. 11, wrote
the following letter:
"My dear Mr. Alles: I have your letter of Aug. 9, in which you ask
my co-operation to secure the election of a Republican Congress in November. I have voted the Republican ticket for 55 years and have
made contributions whenever requested by the Republican party.

Criticism of Tariff Bill.
"You ask me if I have observed
the Democrats, true to form,

JOHNSON CLOSES SWIFT CAMPAIGN IN CALIFORNIA

More Than 700,000 Votes Expected to Be Cast Tomorrow in Republican State Primary.

KEEN INTEREST SHOWN IN SENATORIAL RACE

Senator's Opponent, C. C.
Moore, Based Fight on Representative's Stand on Four Power Pact.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Tomorrow about 700,000 men and women in California will go to the polls to determine one of the bitterest and most spectacularly fought senatorial campaigns in the history of the State. There are 927,000 registered Republicans in California, and so hot has the campaign been that political
"doctors" figure more than 700,000
of the registration will have a hand
in determining whether Hiram Johnson, senior Senator, will return to Washington to represent this State.

C. C. Moore, who is opposing Johnson for the senatorial nomination, is a wealthy business man of Santa Cruz, who was president of the Panama-Pacific exposition. He numbers among his supporters many so-called
"Johnson haters," who have opposed Senator Johnson since his gubernatorial days, as well as some former Johnson supporters who are opposing him because of his stand against the League of Nations. Moore has based much of his campaign on Johnson's opposition to the four-power pact and to the fact that he acted as counsel for the people of New York in their fight for the Eisenhower law.

Johnson has made one of the spectacular fighting campaigns for which he is famous. Returning to California a full month after his opponent started his campaign, Johnson literally has gone from one end of the State to the other, drawing enormous crowds and arousing the wildness of his enemies. He has taken up the challenge of his foreign policy
by Moore and assured his audiences that "California on Tuesday will enroll herself in the Union as a believer in America first." He flatly charges that the Moore candidacy was fostered by Wall Street in order that he might be broken on the wheel of political defeat in order that the United States might be dragged into the maelstrom of European alliances.

AUSTRIAN CHANCELLOR SAYS HE CAN PREVENT COLLAPSE

Declares on Return From Italy He Has Proposed Which Will Aid in Crisis.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, Aug. 28.—A brief statement was issued yesterday by Dr.
Ignaz Seipel, the Austrian Chancellor, on his return from Verona, Italy,
where he conferred with Signor Schanzer, the Italian Foreign Minister, on Austria's financial and economic straits. The statement, however, contains no additional information to that published in dispatches from Verona, Prague and Berlin, which also were visited by Dr. Seipel.

The statement concludes with the announcement that Dr. Seipel is in a position to make concrete proposals to the Government which will preclude the immediate collapse of Austria, which has been felt to be inevitable. The nature of the proposals was not disclosed. In political circles, it is believed they are either based on some form of agreement with Italy or on another attempt to delay the crisis through the League of Nations.

GOMPERTS SEES LABOR VICTORY IN DEFEAT OF WAGE REDUCTIONS

Organized Workers Have Reason to Congratulate Themselves, He Declares.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Organized labor groups have every reason to congratulate their membership with the coming of Labor day in 1922 because of the industrial and political solidarity of the working people, because of the "failure" of "employers to bring about wage reductions," and determination within themselves to push forward, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, declares in an address published in the forthcoming issue of the American Federationist.

There has been a general resistance of American labor to the program of wage reduction and it has been successful, he asserted.
"It is safe to say that the full volume of wage reductions since the armistice, if averaged up and spread over the working population, would be less than 5 per cent." Gompers said, adding that this is a "stark defeat for employers."

FRISCO OFFICERS SAY STRIKE CAUSES BUT LITTLE DELAY

Motive Power in Eastern and Memphis Divisions of Road Apparently Holding Up Well.

ENGINEERS INSPECT
THEIR LOCOMOTIVES

Their Search for Flaws Is in Addition to the Regular Inspection—About 60 Workmen Sleep in Yards.

Motive power on the Eastern and

Memphis divisions of the St. Louis
San Francisco Railroad is holding up well, under strike difficulties, in regard to day-to-day running conditions. Concentration of its smaller force of workers on those tasks requiring immediate attention, however, has caused an increase in the number of locomotives and cars the Frisco has laid up awaiting heavier repairs.

Inspection conditions were found by a Post-Dispatch reporter by a trip of inspection through the Chouteau avenue roundhouse, shops and yards of the Frisco, where all but the heavier work is done on such of the equipment for these two divisions.

Situation in Roundhouse.
Nineteen of the 20 stalls in the roundhouse were occupied by engines of which only about three were in repairs requiring more than 12 hours. The rest would be in shape
at the end of that time or sooner,
to go out on their regular runs.

Outside in the yards were about half a dozen engines, the strike began just as one of them was about to receive a new cab. Men capable of this work have now been obtained, but are too busy on daily repairs to take the time to make a deferred. Meanwhile, some of the other parts of the engine have been taken when needed by other locomotives, rather than bring about a week until these parts could be repaired. Parts also have been taken from another engine put aside
in the yards.

In all, seven locomotives are in such condition as to require the long wait for heavier repairs. In normal times, two or three engines, out of 40, are so laid up on these two divisions. Figures for the 847 engines show that the strike has disabled
the eight per cent ordinarily so disabled has increased to 11 per cent since the strike began July 1.

Running Repairs Made at Terminal.
Running repairs on the main line passenger engines are no longer made at the local yards, this work having been turned over again to the Terminal Railway Association, a company which handles the freight and suburban freight and switch engines hauled in the Frisco shops, all seamed of the same type within their class, and none appeared to be an engine recalled to meet an emergency, as has been claimed by strikers
in the case of many roads.

Two engines, kept "in white lead," or reserve, have been put back into service here, while about 30 of passenger locomotives over the system
also have been placed on the job
again, it was said. Only engines fully capable of doing the work within their class are held in this reserve, it was pointed out.

From four to six weeks would be required to bring the running equipment, exclusive of that needing the heaviest repairs, up to its normal efficiency, should the road strikers now,
A. H. Jones, assistant to the vice president of operation, said. P. W.
Conley, superintendent of the Frisco terminal, believes this point could be reached in a much shorter time.
The general condition of the equipment is good, he asserted.

Engineers Make Inspections.
Besides their regular inspections,
each engineer, since the strike, goes carefully over his locomotive when it is turned over to him," Conley said. "If he finds anything wrong
he's not going to take any chances, but immediately notifies us and the necessary repairs are made at once.
These occasions some delay usually,
but it can be helped. Safety requirements must be met fully."

The strike call took out 6900 employees on the Frisco system. New men up to 4000 had replaced them
by the time the road strikers say.
The local shops lost 143 men in the machinist department, and 165 in the car men's division. In the machined branch 138 are now employed, and 140 in the car men's division. Many are men with previous railroad experience, skilled in the type of work on which they are engaged, it was said.

None has the appearance of the professional strike breaker. There is no "hardness" apparent: In the roundhouse the men went about their work with what appeared an unusual amount of enthusiasm. They seemed proud of "keeping her going" in spite of everything.
Work here was moving forward promptly and apparently efficiently. Two evidences of carelessness on the part of individual workers were explained as occurrences that

BRITISH ECONOMIST TERMS POINCARÉ'S REPARATIONS PROPOSALS 'IMBECILITIES'

John Maynard Keynes Describes Conditions in Germany and Says Unconditional Moratorium Is Necessary.

By JOHN MAYNARD KEYNES, Britain's Leading Economist.
(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Publisher
Publishing Co., the New York World
and the Post-Dispatch.)

HAMBURG, Aug. 28.—The situation in Germany is very anxious. I did not appreciate until I came here
how near Germany is to a nervous breakdown. The effect of the crashing fall of the mark on the sentiment of the general public is terrifying
and disintegrating.

Prices in the shops change every hour. Nobody knows what his week's wages will buy at the end of the week. The mark is at the same time valueless and scarce. On the one hand shopkeepers do not want to receive marks and some of them are unwilling to sell at any price. On the other hand, in Hamburg Saturday the banks were so short of ready cash
that the Reichsbank advised them
to cash no checks for more than 10, 000 marks. Some of the biggest institutions were thus unable to cash
their customers' checks and pay wages. The public is pessimistic, depressed and has lost all confidence.

Dangerous Underlying Elements.
In these circumstances everybody's thoughts are involuntarily directed to all the dangerous elements which lie under the surface of German life.
It is remembered that an effective weapon of the young republic against reactionary organizations was the general strike, and that hitherto the working classes have rallied to the government because employment has been good and the means of livelihood sufficient.

But what sort of winter can Germany expect? If exchange continues as it is now unemployment is inevitable because businesses have insufficient cash or credit to purchase
raw materials and keep the factories in operation. Wages will be unable much longer to keep pace with the cost of living.
At the same time the weather in the last month has injured the harvest. Proposals are already afoot to restore food kitchens, rationing and all the apparatus of war time.
An industrial revolution, which cannot support without a drastic down of the economic machinery
those terrific fluctuations in standards of value.
I find, therefore, widespread apprehension that general unemployment and difficulties about food will be graded by the masses as indicating failure of the present regime with the result that they will be lukewarm in its defense.

INTERNAL REVENUE COLLECTIONS SLUMPED IN FISCAL YEAR, 1922

Decrease Was $1,398,000,000 From the 1921 Total—Collection Costs Increased.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Internal revenue collections fell off $1-398,000,000 in the fiscal year 1922,
as compared with the year before.
Costs to the Government of collecting the taxes went up 43 cents for every $100.

Total collections of $2,197,000,000,
as compared with $4,595,000,000 in 1921, were reported in a preliminary statement issued yesterday by Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair.
The cost of gathering this sum was $41,435,000, or $130 for each $100, as against 87 cents for each $100 the year before.
Only the District of Columbia of all the states and territories showed an increase in income and profits
taxes paid, its total being $9,713,090,
or 10 per cent more than in 1921.
The amounts paid in income and profits taxes and the percentage of decreases, compared with 1921, was in Illinois, $179,411,000, 37 per cent decrease, and in Missouri $25,017, 000, 38 per cent.

TURKS MAKE ATTACK ON GREEKS

Attempt by Nationalists to Pierce Front Declared to Have Failed.

By the Associated Press.
SMYRNA, Aug. 28.—The Turkish Nationalists launched a mass attack against Afium Karahissar yesterday in an attempt to pierce the Greek front.
It is officially stated that they were repulsed by the Greeks.

ITALY'S NAVY EQUALS FRENCH

Loss of Dreadnought Saturday Cuts France's Rating.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Aug. 28.—The loss of the dreadnought France, which foundered
on the rocks of Quiberon Bay, Saturday morning, reduced the first naval line by one-seventh of first strength and places the French navy on a equality with Italy's. The dreadnought, which cost 40,000,000
francs to build, will cost about 200, 000,000 francs to replace at today's prices. The highest part of the wreck now emerges about eight feet above the level of the lowest tides,
but is completely covered at high tide. There is little hope of re-floating the battleship. The France was the vessel on which M. Poincaré, the President, made a voyage to Russia in July, 1914.

ernment in Moscow officially announced the mobilization of men
born in 1901.

GERMANS MAY BE HEARD ONCE MORE ON REPARATIONS

Their Representatives Will Be Called Before Commission Prior to Moratorium Decision.

FINAL VOTE IS TO BE TAKEN WEDNESDAY

Poincaré's Position as Government Head Depends on Action the Commission Chooses to Take.

By FERDINAND TUOHY,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-
Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Publisher
Publishing Co., the New York World
and the Post-Dispatch.)
PARIS, Aug. 28.—The Germans
once more will be called before the Reparation Commission before the final decision on the moratorium is given next Wednesday. This was announced after a full meeting of the commission at the Hotel Antoria where representatives of France, Belgium, Italy, England and the United States were gathered for an hour.

Under the Versailles treaty the Germans are entitled to be heard.
It is said Finance Minister Her-mos and Gustave Bergmann, his assistant, will avail themselves of this last opportunity to plead their country's cause. The delegates yesterday day gave their opinions on the latest German proposal, that the reparations under the leadership of Hugo Stinnes should see that France get her reparations of kind. The British and Italians were in favor of it; the French and Belgians were opposed.

So the nature of Wednesday's decision is coming to rest more and more with Belgium. France is making every effort to win her over to the French stand. The semi-official Times even sends out a feeler with the suggestion that in certain eventualities Belgium might be in a better position to make a moratorium sum of reparation gold before winter. The paper also writes as if the international war debt conference
in the fall is a foregone conclusion.
Also that Secretary of Commerce Hoover will attend it and may even be called in before then to arbitrate certain other outstanding financial matters affecting European solvency.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OF A.L. POSTOFFICES URGED BY WORK

Plan, Approved by Harding, Would Stop Profitizing in Rentals
in Many Cities.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Government ownership of postoffice buildings in every city and town in the United States has been proposed to Congress by Postmaster-General
Harding, based upon reports showing that the plan would mean a saving of approximately half a billion dollars within the next 10 years.

Administration leaders in Congress, regarding the undertaking as designed to check "profitizing in rentals," are prepared, it is said, to urge immediate enactment of legislation providing for a nation-wide postal building program. The Postmaster-General has explained that the Department now pays in rentals annually about $12,000,000.

President Harding was informed by the Postmaster-General that the Government could borrow money on practically a 4 per cent basis to build postoffices.

There are at present, according to reports submitted to the Postmaster-General to Senate and House committees, 5836 postoffices in leased quarters and only about 1200 in buildings owned by the Government.

SHIPS AT SEA PICK UP STATION K S D

On Atlantic Ocean and Gulf of Mexico Post-Dispatch Radio Is Clearly Heard.

In the voluminous mail which came to the Post-Dispatch radio broadcasting station this morning were two letters written at sea concerning the programs sent out by K S D. These letters are so unusual that they are reprinted in full. The first follows:

S. S. W. M. Burton, Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 24, 1922.—Having greatly enjoyed one of your radio broadcasting concerts while crossing the gulf, I thought it would repay you partly by such entertaining by writing and telling you how I heard it. The ship on which I am radio operator was 100 miles east-southeast of Sabine Pass and the signals could be heard at least three inches from the phone. Of course, I have an audio detector and one stage of amplification, but nevertheless I think it's a good distance covered by your apparatus, taking into consideration other stations I have heard. Houston and Beaumont, which were working at the same time on Aug. 19th, did not come in as loud, although they were much nearer.

"As I am writing to a newspaper, I have something to tell which might be of interest to you. I firmly believe I am the editor of the smallest newspaper in the world—that is, a complete one, having foreign and domestic news, baseball scores, weather reports, marine news, cartoons appropriate for life aboard ship, jokes, advertisements, want ads, lost and found, obituary, editorials, sporting page and a few minor articles. It is published daily with four copies, but read with great interest by 35 men. The baseball scores and news items are received by wireless, but the other is original. Our wireless operators put out the news, but none have a complete station and other articles which do not come over the wire.

"Thanking you for the entertainment your concerts give and for the attention, I am,

Sincerely yours,
HENRY A. PEARCE,
Radio Operator, S. S. W. M. Burton, Atlantic Refining Co."

The second letter reads:
"S. S. Gunlight, Savannah, Ga., Aug. 25, 1922.—I take the liberty of writing this letter to you to state that I heard your concerts on several occasions while in the Gulf of Mexico. One evening in particular, Saturday, Aug. 19, when about 50 miles east of Port Arthur, Texas, although the static being heavy, your signals came in loud, modulation very good and signals clear. Heard on about 350 or 375 meters, with bulb detector, the selections by the De Moley Orchestra. Signed off at 10:55 p. m. 12th meridian time.

"I also heard you on various other nights, but as static was very bad and signals faded, I could not get it all, only parts of each selection and K S D, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Last night while about 100 miles out from Savannah I again heard you sign off on buzzer at 10:20 p. m. 75th time, K S D by W. L. "Enjoyed your concerts, especially on August 19, very much, and hope to be able to hear you again."

"Please verify the above programs. Very truly yours,
HAROLD E. WEIGAND,
Radio Operator, S. S. Gunlight,
Port Arthur, Texas, in care Gulf Refining Co."

From St. Paul, Minn.
I wish to commend you on the artists selected and the manner in which your programs are broadcast. I hope that I may have the privilege of hearing your concerts again.

SCREEN "NICE PEOPLE" HAS FINE SETTINGS

"The Bonded Woman," and
"The Delicious Little Devil,"
Also on View.

The motion picture version of "Nice People" at the New Grand Central, Lyric Skydome and Capitol theaters serves to exploit the directing genius of William C. de Mille and the shadow acting of Bebe Daniels and Wallace Reid, rather than the literary artistry of Rachel Crothers, who wrote the play for the stage. It is but natural that a work of this kind should lose some of its effectiveness when robbed of its "smarm" dialogue. In a measure this deficiency is offset by the beauty and the gorgeous gowning of Miss Daniels and the pantomimic ability of Wallace Reid. Miss Daniels plays the leading role in sprightly style. She is a thoughtless young flapper who circumvents Volstead and smokes cigarettes. Also, she flirts. This is a dangerous combination.

There is a silly escapade which threatens to wreck her reputation with "nice people," but in the nick of time she enters to bring her back stage and sound with a realization that she is something more than a lifeless puppet. This type of hero role is unusual for Wallace Reid, but he meets its requirements. There is a good cast and some of the big scenes have the unmistakable de Mille stamp.

Opening its fall and winter season the Liberty has for its main attraction "The Delicious Little Devil," with Mae Murray and Rudolph Valentino in the leading roles. Miss Murray has the part of a cabaret dancer, and as has come to be expected of her, she appears in striking costumes which cannot be said to throw a smoke screen around her physical charms. Valentino is the high-minded youth of the story. He falls in love with the dancer, but hesitates to declare himself, because he fears that she is past reforming. The girl longs to tell him that her seemingly wild and reckless exterior is an assumed pose, called for by the necessity of providing support for her family.

This revelation is made in the end, but not until after several dramatic episodes which cumulatively reveal the girl's true nature.

Although "The Bonded Woman" is the title of the picture at the Missouri Theater this week, the theme of the piece has principally to do with bonded goods of another sort. For this is a story from the quaint old pre-Volstead days, when it was fashionable for a young woman to save a young man from drink as a preliminary to marrying him.

The bibulous bucko in this case is John Sumner, a nautical person, and the angel of regeneration is Betty Compson as Miss Angela Gaskell, daughter of a sea captain who owes his life to Sumner. In her campaign to redeem Sumner from a life of inebriation, Miss Gaskell obtains a captain's berth for him, and for his bond, mortgages the Gaskell home-estate. But a really mate exists between the ship's papers and money, and Sumner is discredited, whereupon he makes for the South Seas with two ideas in mind, to wit: that he will repay Miss Gaskell and that he will do his best to diminish the circulatory supply of liquor—by drinking it.

Angela follows him to Samoa. But the young man is incredibly obtuse. He thinks she is merely trying to collect on the bond. She climbs a mast and feigns a faint, so he will have to carry her down; she deliberately teaches his schooner and then sends the crew away in the only boat to maroon herself with him on a desert island, but it never dawns upon the man of the sea that she loves him. When he finally makes this discovery, the emotional climax of the piece occurs. Slowly he climbs to the dizzy height of the cliff, and as he looks far down at

ADOLF BRIX DIES ON BUSINESS TRIP TO CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

Widow of St. Louis Florist, Ignorant of Death, Is on Way to Mah-risch-Trubau.

Adolf Brix, 69 years old, a florist of 1518 St. Louis avenue, died Saturday at Mah-risch-Trubau, Czechoslovakia, of a complication of diseases after an illness of almost six months. He sailed March 9 on a business trip to Czechoslovakia, where he was born, became ill while making the voyage and went immediately to the home of a niece, Mrs. Otto Achlein, where he remained until his death. Brix, who came to St. Louis 24 years ago and engaged in the floral business, was active in raising funds for numerous European relief.

The widow, Mrs. Augusta Brix, sailed for Czechoslovakia last Wednesday, after being informed of the serious illness of her husband. She has not been notified of his death, according to relatives here. Besides the widow, Dr. Arthur D. Brix of 2528 St. Louis avenue, and a daughter, Mrs. Adolfin Grimm of 2723 Dodder street, survive. The body will be returned here for burial as soon as Mrs. Brix reaches Mah-risch-Trubau.

The rocks below he is seen to be wrestling with his innermost feelings. He wins, and a second later a full case of the best Scotch whisky crashes upon the beach. The subsequent rescue and matrimonial entanglements follow not a moment too soon.

The program makes a considerable foray into the realm of vaudeville, a comedy dancing pair supplying the most entertaining number. There are several pleasing musical ensembles, and a comedy film, "The Reporter."

LE MAIRE AND CONROY AT ORPHEUM OPENING

Burlesque Sharpshooting Act,
and Vera Gordon in "Lullaby" Feature "Big Time" Offering.

The fall and winter season of "big time" vaudeville opened auspiciously at the Orpheum Theater yesterday with several tried and true entertainers and some new ones on a bill that left nothing to be desired for quantity and diversity. The undecorated novelty is a burlesque sharpshooting act with George LeMaire as "Sure Shot Dick" and Frank Conroy as the blackface human target. LeMaire's shooting iron never hits the bull's eye, but Conroy's comedy rings the bell every time.

But for the fact that Vera Gordon was seen here last season in her sketch "Lullaby," this offering would deserve headline honors. Miss Gordon has perfected her work in the part of the Jewish mother until it is now gem-cut and flawless. The work of the supporting company is of equal excellence.

Jack LaVier returns with his screamingly funny trapeze monologue. Masking his acrobatic skill with a camouflage of most amusing "batter," LaVier has an act that is full of thrills and laughter.

Jean Granes, a singer of more than ordinary attainments, has comedy assistance from two Italian dialect funmakers who come from the audience. One of these is her brother Charlie, who sings operatic songs with surprising effect.

Richard Keane, working alone this season, recites "Gunga Din" and gives characterizations of Cardinal Wolsey and "Peter, the Miser."

George LeMaire makes a second appearance in an act which he calls "At the Dentist's." It is sheer horseplay, with strong leanings toward unpardonable vulgarity.

M. Adolphus, a ballet impresario, has a colorful act in which he is assisted by three young women. One plays the violin and the others dance.

The Burns Brothers have a hand balancing act.

An added feature is a motion picture of episodes in the recent Pageant of Fashion at the Municipal Theater. There also is a news weekly.

WHAT DID YOU SEE TODAY?

Volunteer Reporters Tell the Post-Dispatch of the Interesting, Unusual and Often Humorous Incidents They Encounter.

"HERE is what I have seen," a woman contributor from out of town writes. "My husband's incidents twice printed, while I, bordering on being a professional writer, cannot get mine in print. Oh, well, let the amateurs have their day."

Let them, indeed. Let them have as many days, and as much space, as the calendar and the supply of white paper will provide. That is how amateurs may become professionals, and may some day get more than $1 a paragraph for their writings. Meanwhile, perseverance may win, if the "bordering-on-professional" writer has time and material for further efforts. The hope is also ventured that the husband is taking his successes modestly. It is not the aim of this department to cause discord in families, except for the little unavoidable squabbles as to who shall read this page first. Today's selections are:

A LONG, LONG TRAIL.

I was in a drug store when a man came in and asked for some road maps. He said he had been following the "yellow trail" from Illinois and that when he got to this city he found several trails. He had been following the street car stop posts. D. BRISTOW, 4307A S. Grand bl.

CIRCULATING MEDIUM.

I saw several children playing cards. One little girl ordered a lot of "groceries" but didn't have the money. The "groceryman" considerably gave her a few soda bottle caps.

How to Lose Your Tan, Freckles or Wrinkles

A day's motoring, an afternoon on the beach or exposure to a water trip, sun or more penetrating still, a vigorous crop of freckles. A very necessary thing then, is to remove them. Castoria removes tan, redness or freckles quite easily. It is the only medicine of the affected skin—just a little of a time, so there's no hurt or inconvenience. As the skin comes up in almost invisible "freckle patches," no trace of the treatment is shown. Castoria, an ointment of medicinal castor oil, is a solution of powdered castor oil, one ounce. Dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. This is not only a valuable skin cream, but has a beneficial effect on the skin.

Hold Fast to Sentiment If You'd Keep Happy

Keep Out of the Rut Where the Beautiful Side of Anything Is Lost to You or You Will Lose the Capacity for Enjoying Beautiful Things.

By SOPHIE IRENE LOEB.

A FEW days ago I visited one of the largest nurseries where they grow many varieties of roses—thousands of them. The man at the head of this work, Mr. K., has spent many years at it, and when he handled the bushes to show them to me it seemed to me, in the vernacular, that he was "treating me rough."

I remonstrated with him, for he did not seem to have much sentiment about the lovely blooms, looking upon them as mere merchandise to be grown and sold.

He smiled at my disapproval and said:

"Oh, my dear lady, I have lost all sentiment about such things. I have had a grain of sentiment in my making. Roses are roses, and that is all there is to it. I have not any sentiment about anything. Life is one big work that must be performed, and there isn't much more besides."

"And he tried his best to make me realize that he was 'hard as nails,' amidst all these beautiful flowers, and that nothing mattered much except getting the roses developed and distributed, and then home and back again the next morning."

I came again to this same place and I talked to this man about other matters. I found him keenly interested in the welfare of little children and laws concerning them and what was being done to help them, and he wanted a book that I spoke about to read on the subject.

He wanted to know how a recent statute affected the families of poor men, and when I left him he urged me to be sure to send him these facts. And this was the man who had said he had lost all sentiment!

"Ah, yes! For the time being he has lost a poetic sense of the rose because it is not sent to him as a token of love or friendship. He is in the grim business of 'manufacturing' them. He sees so many thousands every day that the charm of them has naturally been lost. He has to look to the sordid side rather than the spiritual side of the rose, and so there is little sentiment left for them."

But it is only temporarily, I believe if he were away from the greenhouses and the roses, he would look at the flowers in a different light. Yet the entire incident of the man who said he had lost sentiment gave me food for reflection. The truth about him is that he is full of sentiment and doesn't know it. Or perhaps he doesn't want to admit it. I venture to say he would do anything to save a child sorrow or trouble, or a fellow workman. While he might not think of sending children roses, he would doubtless send children toys and make them Christmas trees and perhaps have great fun in decorating them.

He will never lose sentiment as long as he loves something that needs his help—as long as he is interested in the trials of others. That is the highest kind of sentiment—the sentiment for those who are not close to you.

But generally speaking there is great danger of people losing sentiment when they stick too long to one thing. For example, I know a girl who makes the most exquisite beaded robes for other people, yet she could not bear to wear one herself. Since she is sick of her job.

There are hundreds of people who live in the country and who are constantly confronted with nature "in her most visible forms." Yet they never see the beauties of it. But let him who has little or nothing of it come out and he begins to see warm about the most trifling things that the former one has failed to see.

Certainly, too much of anything does take away the sentiment, and too much knowledge about a thing acts the same way. For example, the botanist who takes a rose and tears it apart in order to find how many petals and pistils and stamens there are, is bound to lose much of the beauty of the rose as a whole—as it presents itself to the eye.

The big thing is not to have too much of anything, or leastwise so to conduct it that if it is beautiful, it is not lost to you at any time. The man or woman who really loses all sentiment has little to live for and is a sorry individual indeed.

Don't permit yourself to get into a rut where the beautiful side of anything is lost to you, for before you know it you will lose the capacity for enjoying lovely things and life will be just one humdrum thing after another.

Hold fast to one of the biggest elements in life—Sentiment.

Here Are Recipes for Several Different Kinds of Shortcake

SHORTCAKE, to those who really know it in all its excellence, means a cake made from so-called "home-made" dough and filled with carefully prepared fruit. The shortcake as prepared for the uninitiated is a sweet cake of one or two layers, with berries spaced over the top and between the layers, dusted with a little powdered sugar, then topped with whipped cream—a disappointing confection to those who know the other kind.

The recipes that follow are for real shortcake. They have been tried and proved excellent, and this is the season to make use of them with other small fruit, as well as strawberries.

Strawberry Shortcake. Wash and top three baskets of ripe, sweet berries, put them in a bowl with two and half cups of sugar, stirring them often, and place them in a cool place for several hours. Melt a cupful of sugar and a half cupful of boiling water, boil five minutes, then set aside to cool. Sift together two cups of flour, four level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half of a level teaspoonful of salt, and cut in a quarter cupful of butter with two knives. Add a cupful of rich milk, a little at a time, and mix to a soft dough.

Divide the dough and put it into two well-greased layer-cake pans which have been sifted with flour, and press it to one inch in thickness. Bake in a brick oven for 15 or 20 minutes. Turn one layer upside down on a deep serving platter and butter liberally, then cover with berries, lay on the other layer and butter it, then cover and bake with berries. Take a small cupful of the berry juice, add it to the sugar syrup and place in a sauceboat. The rest of the juice pour gradually over the shortcake. As the shortcake takes up juice it is good to have some extra to serve with each helping.

The cake should be eaten warm or soon after it is made to be at its best. If any of the cake is left, put it in a bowl and turn all the juice over it. This will soak it, but that is better than to have it dry out and the berries turn pink.

Raspberry Shortcake. Wash and pick over the raspberries, then put them in a dish with two and half cups of sugar. Use three baskets of berries if they are small, two if very large. Let the berries stand not more than an hour before using and stir them gently several times. Make the cake as directed, and butter it well, put the berries on the inside and over the top, and add a cupful of the juice to the sugar syrup made as already directed. If desired, whipped or plain cream may be served with this shortcake.

Pineapple and Rhubarb Shortcake. Pare, remove the eyes and cut fine one large, sweet pineapple, and cover with a cupful of sugar. Cut up 12 medium-sized stalks of fresh rhubarb, and cover it with boiling water. Let the rhubarb stand 10 minutes, drain, then put in a saucepan with a half cupful of water and two cups of sugar. Simmer gently for 10 minutes, skim, then remove and cool. When cool turn two cups of the fruit over the pineapple and drain off the juice from the rest and add it to the fruit. When ready to lay up the cake, take a cupful of the juice and add it to a cupful of sugar syrup. Put the rest of the juice over the cake after covering it with fruit. This is a delicious shortcake, and not made very often.

Current Shortcake. Wash, stem and sweeten the currants, add a cupful of raspberries to them and lay up the same as the raspberry shortcake.

CHAPTER XI.

Layer Cake.

I HAVE my faults," said Mrs. Stopper, stroking down the brown-and-white foulard over her prominent bust, upon which she habitually seemed to suspect the persistence of a breakfast crumb. "Nobody knows that better than myself, but I am not a gossip. I can't abide gossip. Indeed, I said to Mrs. Eggleston yesterday when we were discussing the dreadful trouble that was coming upon poor Mrs. Huggs like a judgment from Heaven, every one having expected a catastrophe since she was blind long enough to cultivate the acquaintance of the Johnson woman, knowing as she must have known that better than myself, is no softer than that husband of hers, and I've always said that if a woman can't keep her husband she deserves to lose him; meat is too strong food for a weak stomach, and a wife should temper the wind to the short lamb!"

"Yes, ma'am," said Q. T. Kinwiddien. He was a figure of discretion, seated in Mrs. Stopper's parlor, sipping Mrs. Stopper's tea. The room was arranged for a card party which preceded a reading from Sir Walter Scott. Mrs. Stopper being chairman of a Scott club. The members were due at 4:15 and it was now 4 o'clock. Q. T. having found wandering and returned a yellow cat named Sweetie, very dear to Mrs. Stopper's heart, was being rewarded by refreshments and moral observations.

"So I said to her, 'Gossip is one of the seven deadly sins—not that I mean to be irreverent, you understand, Mr. Kinwiddien, because I was quite in earnest, and Mrs. Huggs was the first to cast a stone, when Charles B. Staraway's daughter turned a yellow cat named Sweetie, very dear to Mrs. Stopper's heart, was being rewarded by refreshments and moral observations.'"

"Just fine, thank you," said Mrs. Stopper, smiling up at him. "I suppose, well, he's very good, I dare say, and a pleasant-looking gentleman enough, and the best people call him in, and I know that Miss Grinscomb won't have any other medical man, not if she was on her deathbed, but I can't help it. I did like Dr. Ellison. It seemed like a lot more for my indignation than Dr. Sales. And I never could believe what they told of him and the poor woman having to leave Stuyvesant because of it and he is in love with dear Mary Grinscomb, though I don't think she'd have had him, though you never can tell, and Miss Grinscomb, well, she's a good girl, on the hospital staff and drives around in person to his patients, breaking up his practice with her own hands, you might say! Loyalty to your friends is one thing and Dr. Sales has been her friend, no doubt, they do say there was a time when, hadn't it been for the pride of old Mr. Grinscomb, which—" even when you consider all he had to be proud of, and I hope it's a story—me not to admit a just superiority—was something awful—now, where was I, Mr. Kinwiddien?"

"I'm afraid, ma'am, I'm off the trail. You was speakin' about doc's bet'n' a friend to Miss Grinscomb, wasn't you?"

"I presume likely. Hadn't it been for Mr. Grinscomb's pride, doctor might have been more to Miss Selda than a friend. He looked kind in his first case, a practitioner in a very small way, for it wasn't until the Manor took him up that his practice began to amount to anything—and I hear now that it ain't safe for him to go among the mill-hands—all to which is something before my day; I was about 18 when doctor first came to the place with his little bow and arrow, whatever he was, and when he was here, and we can't be sure, for the secrets of his heart are unknown, we are all perfectly sure he wanted Laurie to match off with Miss Heloise—that was purdykin' apparent to every layer of Stuyvesant society. And Laurie and Miss Heloise were a pretty pair of friends, and a quite intimate. Stuyvesant society is like a layer cake, don't you think, Mr. Kinwiddien? As Molly herself says—her name for it, my dear—'Grinscomb's on top'—"

Q. T. was moved to laughter. "That's a mighty fine word for it, Mrs. Stopper. 'Grinscomb's'—it's something I've been seekin' for—'Grinscomb's'."

Mrs. Stopper's little round face of a gossip began to glow. "Grinscomb's," she went on, moved by applause to an elaboration of her figure, "and then comes we townspeople, good solid too, and quite intimate. Stuyvesant society is like a layer cake, don't you think, Mr. Kinwiddien? As Molly herself says—her name for it, my dear—'Grinscomb's on top'—"

"It's a mighty fine word for it, Q. T. admitted. "Keeps me mullin'."

"Yes," chuckled Mrs. Stopper, "but you've come along with a knife and cut a slice down through from King to place. Why you've got friends clear down to the little yellow curls that hang around the saloon on the corner. I saw you one afternoon, taking one of the hotel waitresses—Sophie into a movie matinee! I call that democracy. But it won't do you any good at the Manor, young man, take my word for that. They won't understand it—not Miss Grinscomb—at all. You can't go riding with Miss Heloise one day and calling on Mrs. the next and taking a waitress to the movies on the third, and keep your social footing in Stuyvesant."

"When are you again to show me the 'door, ma'am'?" asked Q. T., standing up and smiling at his hostess.

"Well, you look out. What Grinscomb Manor says goes. We townspeople don't run against Miss Grinscomb's decision, generally speaking."

"To, got me plumb scared, ma'am," said Q. T. Kinwiddien.

"Yes, you'd better be! And how goes the education?"

"Still uphill and down timber and slide rock."

"Oh, what you're going now?" "I reason I must," Q. T. opened his eyes and got a date with Sophie.

Mrs. Stopper's face showed genuine concern. She came close to her tall visitor, and put a plump hand on his arm. "Now, Mr. Kinwiddien, please don't be foolish. Eastern ways are different. Western ways are no body knows better than myself, having an only daughter married and living in the Dakotas, a wild prairie place where she eats with the hired men and as far as I can make out, the poor child cooks for them, and brought up delicate, as I took pains to teach her the pianoforte and a real clever hand at bridge she was too. Sophie has done enough mischief already, as doctor would be the first to tell you. Ah, well! I'll not tell you the story, for I can't give it at first hand and I'm not the one to gossip, but I wish you to tell Mr. Huggs as all of us do at Stuyvesant, and thank you kindly for bringing home Sweetie, he gives me more trouble than a babe—that animal—so being in his disposition, say, if I dared, I'd christen him—"

Mrs. Huggs came down the hall and out of the door, and from the porch unit, having passed through the gate. Q. T. passed out of the range of the plump voice, favoring its own sound on the agile tongue.

"He thought, amused and quizzical. He was revolving one of his aphorisms. 'Talkin' makes things happen just as sure as happenings make folks talk. It's a plumb tangle.' He turned and looked at himself, 'somebody lives and feels' gets tied up together when they live too close. Pops is like horses in a crowded corral, they fair trample on each other. When you try to cut out the middle of a rope, somebody's likely to get hurt pretty bad."

He went thoughtfully along the little maple-bordered street and turned down Main street to the hotel, where he passed through a vacant, shaded dining room, in which the good society of fly life was subdued to a dim, hazy murmur, through swinging doors into the pantry. It was a bare, narrow room and at its far end, near the single window, a small, dark, round table, and in her hand, her forehead pressed against the pane, he stood for a minute looking at her, and the expression of his eyes was less guarded than usual, and more masterful.

He thought of a few people of this Eastern world, he felt entirely self-assured and dominant. She was like himself, unlettered, wild and direct. Her beauty was in all its points passionate and primitive—the wild, startled eyes, the quick, soft motions of her lips, her changeable color, the way she held her hips and supple body. Bone by bone she was one of the women he knew. She was ready for the fight, the struggle, the fight, the struggle that demands capture. She was ignorant, lowly, unhappy, rebellious. His nerves seemed to rest in the relaxation of a certain limited but fundamental congeniality.

"Hello," said Q. T. "You ready for that body-water?"

She turned about, looked at her head, on her hat, and moved, the brittle low over face, in silence toward him. He went to look closely at her and straightened. "Say, you Sophie gal, what's wrong? You been cryin' your eyes out?"

At that she stood still, put her hands over her face, and sobbed childishly.

"It isn't anything, I can tell you about, sir."

"Quit callin' me 'sir.' I've spoken to you about that quite a lot now. You, gal, who's been treatin' you as if you was a body, say! Come along to the body-pump, and we'll mow back into the ice-cream parlor and get a table to ourselves. You're plumb wore out, dish-cranglin'."

In the ice cream parlor they found a fan-stirred excitement. He leaned across the table and touched her hand. She lifted her head, her startled eyes, the eyes of a wild bird, brilliantly black and darting.

"Q. T. he said softly, 'It's been going on so long. I'm all wore out with it.'"

"Is that so?" It was so sympathetic a murmur, and his eyes fixed upon her were so compelling in his thin and handsome face, that her nerves began to tingle out of her.

IRENE CASTLE DISPLAY

FOUR new creations upon which that unquestioned authority on dress and style, Irene Castle, has set her stamp of approval by including them in her autumn wardrobe are here pictured.

The odd fur garment part wrap, part costume, is of mole, collared and bordered with silver fox. The upper part can't decide whether to be a draped cape or a pair of voluminous, wide-cuffed, flowing sleeves. The lower or skirt part of the wrap is entirely separate from the upper portion, really the rear elevation of an overskirt, gathered and tied at the waist by means of a heavy cord slipped through rings attached to the overskirt. It is a curiously designed garment, but extravagantly rich in effect when the graceful wearer twines its generous folds about her slender figure.

In the photograph the famous dancer and mannequin happens to always after me and I'm that tired and heartick that I'm about ready to give in. If he could have had me the wrong way, he'd have left off plaguing my long ago. For half a season here I had to lock my door against him night after night, and I think it's a shame that I do—for Poppa to stand by and encourage him now to get me for his wife. Poppa, knowing what I suffered from him before his own wife died."

"Why, the old coyote," said Q. T., his mind conjuring up the pumpled and perspiring face of the old waiter whom he knew to be the father of Sophie.

"And he is an important gentleman and has means, and if he sells out, he'll be downright wealthy, so Poppa thinks it's a fine match for me, and I suppose it is."

"Say, don't you tie up to any fellow less a Congressman, Sophie, don't you. Let your Pa rear. He can't hurt you—a little fat fellow like him!"

Sophie unwillingly smiled. "I'm real afraid of Poppa," she said, "and when he sells out, I'll be any way."

"What's he again? To sell out of anything?"

"Why, the hotel!"

"You don't say! Why, the gold-digger old son-of-a-bitch—the gold-digger old fool! You don't mean to tell me that Benton, the fellow that looks like a long drink of warm milk, is plottin' to make you his bride!—Miss Mariana's Pa? Say, ain't he the jiveliest old outlay? Who's again? To buy him out?"

"I don't know. He's had a bid from some New York party, through his agent, some man named Gold-man, I think—at least that's the agent's name. I'm not sure."

"Some fellow really wants to own the River Hotel? Well, is that the truth? The world is sure full of quaint fancies. Sell out his little old hotel and marry you—I'd never then proceed to the town house at him and settle up his charges. Does Bill go with the buzz-box?"

Sophie was back in the cloud of her trouble and would no longer smile.

"I've always held myself high," she said. "I have that. And never kept company with any of the town boys, not even carried on with the drummers, and you know they're forever aging and lovelorn."

"I've always kind of hoped—" she stopped with a wavering break in her voice.

"Sure," said Q. T. "Sure, you've hoped for a regular fellow."

"Yes—and when you've known one!" Beneath they lowered their lashes, her cheeks burned and quivered; her ripe lips were pulled straight by pain.

"You can't quit thinkin' of him—I reckon that's true, gel."

"And the more I try to make myself good enough for him, the girl went on, moving with a beautiful difficulty her pain-stretched lips, studying and reading and practicing my writing so he won't be ashamed of my letters!"

"Where is this Laurie boy?" asked Q. T. "In a place called West Lemmon, not so far away. He's started, in practice there and I guess he's doing fine. He is awfully smart and taking and a good-looking."

"What he needs," muttered Q. T. "is one of them long stiff bones that goes down the middle of the back."

"No," Sophie signed, "he needs—just—to see me. But I promised—"

Her voice trailed off into a silence which lasted them through the eating of their ice cream and a sober walk back to the hotel.

Sophie returned to the work and the bother of her daily life, with its thunder, threatening shadows, and Q. T. betook himself to a large leather chair in a corner of the lobby, where he smoked a vast number of cigarettes and stared at Mr. Benton behind the wires of his little cage until that gentleman became so nervously self-conscious that he was stricken with an incessant tickling of the throat.

"But he writes to you, ma'am," said Sophie. "Sometimes, yes. But not for a long time now. And his letters have gotten different, kind of colder-like—I guess—the torturing thought worked out of him as a splinter works from a wound—I guess, by now, he's got another girl."

The Fine Aid Martha Washington Gave "Her" Soldiers.

MARTHA DANBRIDGE was born on a plantation in Virginia in 1722. When very young she learned to play the spinet, dance gracefully and to sew remarkably well.

She surprised she would have when she made her debut into society when 15 years of age if some one had told her future. She was only a little girl, wearing a tight basque and a flowered petticoat then. But she was to be the only woman to hear the first and last shot of every campaign of the Revolutionary War.

Colonel showed her true self and surprised the world with her courage and bravery.

When Washington notified his wife that he would have to remain in Cambridge, in 1774, Martha Washington realized that she might be of great help if she could go to him.

But Cambridge was held by the enemy, and Washington's camp was just outside of the city. The trip would be most dangerous. Friends tried to discourage the determined Mrs. Washington, but she left the quiet plantation and traveled to the war zone, where she might be near her husband if he needed her.

Finally the dreadful winter at Valley Forge came, and Martha Washington was still standing by her soldier husband. With her little cape and hood on, she waded through the snow, defying death from cold or pneumonia while carrying aid to the suffering and offering consolation to the dying.

Pleadings were in vain. Martha Washington would not forsake what she firmly believed was her post of duty. She wrote letters for the soldiers, read to them, sewed for them—in fact, there was no little service which she did not endeavor to render "her boys." They soon grew to with the requirements of conventional evening dress, a long long skirt depending from the other arm contributes a line of slenderness and grace. The skirt, shirred into a full upstanding frill over one hip and left almost flat upon the other, gives another smart and fascinating line.

Almost unrelieved by ornament is the last costume, excepting for tenuous wreaths of leaves made of the same satin-backed crepe of which the gown is draped, a seed pearl garniture across the bust, strands of pearls around the neck and a diadem of jewels upon the forehead.

The men were without shoes and half starving. Martha Washington suffered with them. The inspiration of her presence helped the suffering men through the long winter. Washington might have given up in despair, and the victory might not have been won if Mrs. Washington had not been there with her courageous smile.

Then came victory in 1781. Shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Washington returned to their home in Mount Vernon he was elected President of the United States. After serving two terms he returned home with his wife again.

But happiness was not to last long. Two years later the brave Commander in Chief passed away. Martha Washington, who had been his inspiration during 40 years of married life, followed him two years later. She was laid by his side in Mount Vernon, in a simple brick tomb.

Honor, Love and Thieves

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HE'S a Virginia gentleman—we know he is, because he says so himself. He wasn't gentleman enough to keep from falling in love with a perfectly good girl, when he had a perfectly good wife at home—but just gentleman enough to refuse to tell the girl's name when his wife brought the suit against him for divorce.

"Yes," said the Virginia gentleman, "I'm in love with another woman. I don't deny it—I admit it. I'm proud of it, and I'm proud of her. No, I won't tell her name—I'm a Virginia gentleman, and we don't drag women's names into cases like this."

Very interesting, isn't it? Not in the least anxious to protect the woman he promised to love, honor and cherish as long as he lives. Not at all worried about the feeling of the mother of his little son. Not concerned about what she thought or how she felt, or what was going to become of her.

The other woman? Oh, she's quite another matter! She must be shielded, she must be looked after, no matter whom she has made suffer.

Of course! That's because he's in love with the other woman—just now.

She'll know some day. Some day, probably, the other woman will be asking him some other girl's name and address, and he will be too "honorable" to tell her what she wants to know—I wonder just how she will feel about her friend's sense of honor and nobility then.

"Honorable"—what a fine word it is! How much it means—and how little!

This girl who is taking the man away from his wife—just how much does she deserve to be honored and protected?

They are such odd persons, these girls and women who steal other women's husbands and sweethearts. They want to break all the rules themselves and hold every one else to the exact letter of the law.

Who is she to demand such protection at the hands of the man who is making a fool of himself about her?

No, I'm not condemning her without hearing her side of the case. I know that side and so does every one else who hears the bare fact that she is allowing a man with a wife and children to make love to her.

The pickpocket probably has a side to his story, too—but somehow nobody is ever much interested in that—not when he admits that he is a pickpocket and then tries to escape going to jail for being a thief.

I haven't a particle of patience with either men or women who want to play a game and disregard the rules.

If you're going to steal other women's husbands, go on and steal them, but do not expect to be treated as if you were an angel of sweetness and light while you're doing it.

No one expects a cook to play the piano, speak all the languages and be up in the latest scientific slang, but we do expect a cook—to cook.

One Must Wisely Choose.

And when she says, "No, I can't cook, but I'm awfully nice to my mother," we may feel for her a sort of remote interest—but we are quite likely to engage some one else in her place, as soon as we conveniently can.

The woman who deliberately steps from the straight and narrow path laid down for her by moralists may be, and sometimes is, a woman of character and kindness. But she should look facts in the face and expect to be treated for what she is—an interloper.

When she does that we begin to respect her—just a little.

You cannot eat your cake and have it, too—can you?

I'm afraid I'm not so impressed by the high standards of the gentleman in the case as he evidently meant all of us to be—are you?

NEW YORK.—It looks as though the most important part of the fur coat this winter is to be the lining. Of stunning-furred satins, of rich, plain colors embroidered with metallic threads, it would be a pity if these linings were worn to bluish unseem.

As a matter of fact, long armholes with no sleeves or sleeves slit copiously will insure a glimpse.

NEW YORK.—The newest fancy combs for the coiffure illustrate the fad for black on crystal. Fan-shaped Spanish combs, very elaborately cut out, are of crystal with black enamel tracery. These combs are from five to six inches wide, and are meant to be thrust into the hair at the left side of the back, at an angle as dashing as possible.

Other combs of the Spanish type are enameled with floral rather than arabesque designs, and altogether the vogue for the comb seems to be about as strong as ever.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Feathers Tell a Story.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Only the foolish ever show to other people all they know.

It was late in the afternoon when Reddy Fox started for home the day Bowser the Hound chased him so long and so far. Reddy wanted to go home and he didn't want to go home. You see, he knew that he had done a very foolish thing in visiting Farmer Brown's barnyard and trying to get one of the Ducks there. Mrs. Reddy has a sharp tongue and Reddy dreaded what she would say. So he dreaded to go home. But he had to go. Of course. He wouldn't think of such a thing as deserting his family just on account of a sharp tongue.

All the way there Reddy tried to think of a way to explain what he had done. At first he thought he wouldn't mention those Ducks. Then he thought he would tell Mrs. Reddy that he had tried to get one of those Ducks for the children. But he couldn't quite make up his mind to do this because right down in his heart he knew it wasn't true. He had tried to get one of those Ducks for himself.

As he drew near the home in the Old Pasture he kept stopping. He hadn't found a good excuse and he did so dread having to listen to Mrs. Reddy's sharp tongue. The last time he stopped was a short distance from home. As he sat there, dreading to go on, he caught sight of something white off to one side in the bushes.

"As I live," exclaimed Reddy under his breath, "that looks like a feather from one of those Ducks!" He went over to it. It was a feather from one of those Ducks. At least it was a feather from a Duck, and Reddy knew of no other Ducks. Reddy went on. He found another feather. This was becoming very interesting. He reached a place where he could peep out and see the entrance to his home. Reddy swallowed hard and blinked his eyes at what he saw. Scattered about were many white feathers. Yes, sir, there were white feathers all about the entrance to that home. No one was to be seen, for Mrs. Reddy and the four young Foxes had gone down to the Green Meadows. Reddy walked over to his home.

It looks to me as if some folks had had a Duck dinner," muttered Reddy and his mouth watered. Those feathers told the whole story. He understood the whole thing. "Mrs. Reddy, knowing that I had led Bowser the Hound far away, went over to Farmer Brown's to find out why I had gone there in the first place," thought Reddy. "She discovered those Ducks and she knew that with Bowser gone and Farmer Brown and his boy down in the cornfield it was perfectly safe for her to catch one. She brought it home to the youngsters. I guess now she won't have anything to say to me." Reddy grinned.

Now Reddy had had nothing to eat since during the night before and naturally he was hungry. The sight of those feathers and the smell of Duck made him hungrier still. "I wonder if Mrs. Reddy had a Duck also," thought Reddy, but he knew that he would never dare ask. He knew that it would be useless to try to steal another Duck, for now Bowser was at home, and, besides, Mrs. Brown would surely have looked up those Ducks. But, oh, how he did long for just a taste of one!

Finally he turned his back on those feathers and made his way down to the Green Meadows. There he joined Mrs. Reddy and the four young Foxes hunting for Meadow Mice. And not a word was said about those feathers. In fact, Mrs. Reddy didn't even ask him where he had been so long. For that Reddy was thankful. But, oh, how he did wish that he might have had a taste of that Duck!

ALL STEAMED UP.

WHILE the light holds out to burn.
The vilest sinner may return.
But if we're not mistaken,
From what we hear the rosters say
The Browns had better stay away
Or come home with the bacon.

The fans are blowing off their steam.
And rooting for a pennant team.
And boosting Urban Shocker.
The cheering of the optimists
And all the pennant cop-timists
Is drowning out the knocker.

The fans are in the saddle now
And kicking up a merry row.
Arranging fetes and dinners.
They're making up a long array
Of pennantless and dreary years
Since we had pennant winners.

It's been a long and weary wait
Since back in 1888.
When last we copped the bunting.
So having such a rosy chance
The fans are prone to look askance
At pessimistic grunting.

So if their hopes don't fructify
And from our pole no pennants fly
'Twill be, indeed, a pity.
But if the boys should make the grade
We'll honor them with a parade
And they will own the city.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB.

NO PLACE FOR AN OUTSIDER

I USED to know a New York business man who delighted to tell a yarn of his boyhood. He said that when he was about 16 years old his father, who was a presiding elder of the M. E. Church, took him from his home in Pennsylvania to a town out in Ohio, where the son was to be entered in a small college.

"When we got off the train," said my friend, "the whole town seemed to be in a battle. It was a coal-mining district, and two groups of husky miners with fists and clubs were doing their level best to destroy each other. There were 20 fights going on at once! The Town Marshal was in a doorway looking on, calmly.

"I rather enjoyed the sight, but my father, as a minister of the gospel, was naturally very much shocked. Holding me by the hand, he made for the place where the Town Marshal stood.

"What does this outrage mean," the old gentleman demanded.

"This is payday by the mines," explained the Marshal, in a strong Teutonic accent; "and every payday this happens—the Irish miners, they fight mit the Welsh miners."

"But why don't you stop it?" asked my father.

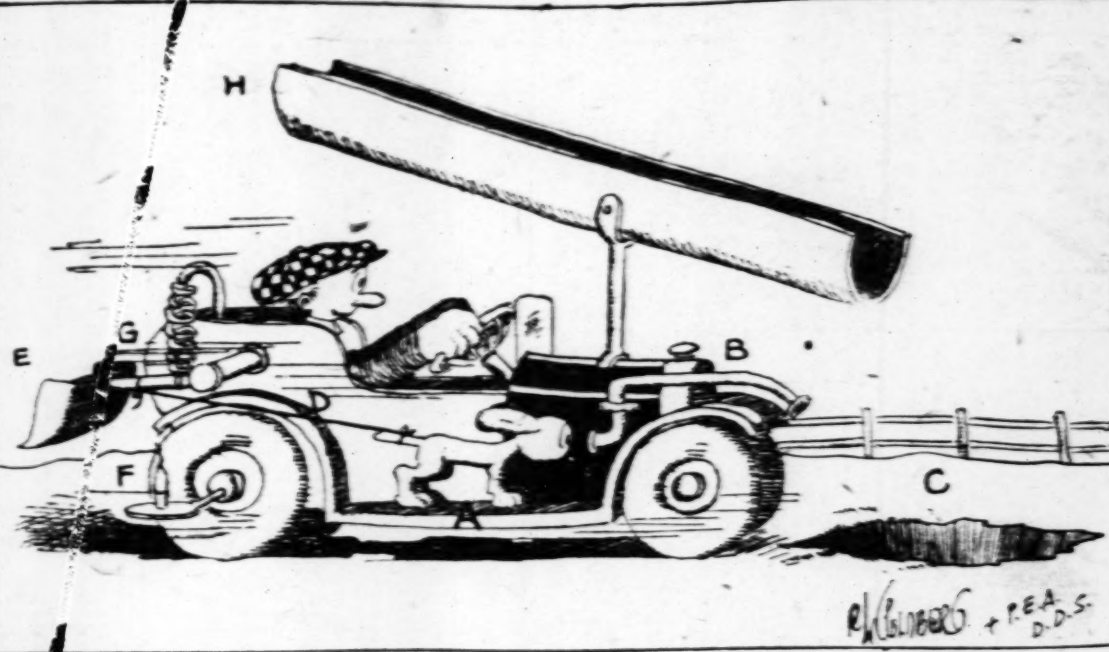

"For why should I interfere?" said the Marshal, simply. "I'm German!"
